State to keep lid on university tuition charges

Gov. Dan Walker on Monday approved appropriations for the state's higher education program totaling $687.7 million, including $449.4 million for operation of the state's junior colleges, universities and scholarship programs.

The $449.4 million for operations represents a $20.3 million increase over last year, a key factor in helping hold the line on tuition increases, Gov. Walker said.

clude: —$20 million more for operating the state's senior colleges and universities; —$3.5 million more for the expanding junior college program; —$5.1 million for the state scholarship program, an increase of more than 8 per cent. The program will fund 6,000 more scholarships.

"The increase in scholarship funds will make it possible for more students from low and moderate income families to attend a college or university here in Illinois," Gov. Walker said.

The junior college program also offers new opportunities for low and middle income families, the governor said.

Specialized training courses and vocational education programs are available to young people at junior colleges and these programs are attracting students who might otherwise forego higher education, the governor said.

The increased appropriation for the junior colleges will enable the state to: —increase the credit hour reimbursement to $17.41, an increase of more than a dollar for each hour credit; —double the vocational technical reimbursement bonus from $2.50 to $5 per credit hour; —fund special programs to provide special training for disadvantaged students; and —provide equalization grants to colleges located in districts with a relatively poor tax base.

In addition to an operating increase for junior colleges, the newly signed appropriations provide $88 million for junior college capital projects spread over 32 campuses.

Senior universities will receive approximately $20 million more for their operations.

"This will allow for reasonable growth in programs, and improved quality of education at our universities at a time when enrollment is stabilizing," the governor said.

The appropriation for operations includes $387 million from the state's general revenue fund and $61 million from university income funds without any increase in tuition.

The measures signed by the governor call for capital construction of $316 million, including the $50 million for junior colleges.

As a result of Walker's actions in higher education, $78 million was trimmed from higher education's operating budget and capital construction was reduced by $62 million.

The governor said that in making his decisions, he followed the recommendations of the Board of Higher Education for distribution of funds within the total appropriation authority which he determined the state could afford.

The appropriations for higher education construction also provided for medical education facilities, including more than $18 million for medical facilities in Rockford, Springfield and Peoria.

Port officers retained

Harold R. Fischer, vice-chairman of First Granite City National Bank, was re-elected president of the Tri-City Regional Port District Board of Directors at its meeting Monday afternoon.

All officers were retained including John Bellcoff, city clerk of Madison, treasurer, and Carl Ranft, secretary. Randall Robertson was re-appointed general counsel for the district.

The board awarded a $5,647 contract to C. D. Peters Construction Co. of Granite City to resurface the flood damaged port roadway and Rock Road from Old Alton Road to the levee. Work is to begin immediately. The Peters bid was the lowest submitted.

Airport need obvious—Price

The St. Louis metropolitan area's future airport needs "are best met through a new regional airport," according to a newly released Federal Aviation Agency 1972 National Airport System Plan, Cong. Melvin Price, Dem., 23rd Illinois, noted this week.

The FAA planning report on recommended a airport development for the next 20 years cites a new St. Louis metropolitan regional airport developed within the next five years "as essential to meeting future requirements." Price related.

The importance of the study, Price continued, "can be seen by the fact that a national determination based on regional FAA recommendations clearly identifies a new airport as the best method for meeting our area's future airport needs."

The local congressman noted that in the case where new major airport development was recommended, concurrence by the FAA headquarters in Washington, D.C., and the U.S. Department of Transportation was required. Other airport requirements were established at regional levels.

"Obviously, this report further underscores the importance of moving ahead without further delay with the new airport for our area," Price concluded.

Retardation appointment

Dr. Richard Blanton, deputy director of the Division of Mental Retardation, was appointed Tuesday as acting administrator by Dr. LeRoy P. Levitt, director of the Illinois Department of Mental Health.

Dr. Blanton will succeed Dr. William Sloan, who is retiring Aug. 1 as director of the division. Dr. Blanton's appointment is effective Aug. 4.

He joined the department in 1970 as assistant director of retardation and later was made deputy director.

Browning, Mathis head week-end MRF concerts

The second weekend of St. Louis Symphony Orchestra concerts at the Mississippi River Festival will feature America's world-renowned pianist John Browning at 8:30 p.m. Saturday and popular singer Johnny Mathis and conductor-composer Mitchell Legrand at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Music Director Walter Susskind will be on the podium Saturday when Browning will be soloist in Tchaikovsky's First Piano Concerto. Susskind will open the program with Mozart's Overture to "The Magic Flute" and close with Elgar's Enigma Variations. Faure's Pavane will also be heard.

Browning, who will be making his Mississippi River Festival debut, has performed frequently with the St. Louis Symphony in Powell Symphony Hall, most recently during the 1971-72 season.

With a career that spans the world, Browning has made 20 European tours in the past 15 years and has performed with every major American orchestra.

He has made three tours of the Soviet Union, appearing in recital in most of the major cities and as soloist with the orchestras of Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev.

For the Sunday performance Legrand will conduct the orchestra in a popular program of orchestral works and songs with Mathis.

Legrand, a native of Paris, is best known for his award winning film scores. Among the best from his scores are "The Windmills of Your Mind", "What Are You Doing the Rest of Your Life?", "Pieces of Dreams" and "I Will Wait for You".

Mathis, whose popularity has never dwindled, has recorded more than 50 albums during the past 15 years and is the only singer to have four of them listed simultaneously as best sellers on national music charts.

His "Johnny's Greatest Hits" won a special award from Billboard Magazine for being the only album to remain in the "Top 100" for more than eight consecutive years.

Among his first hits were "Wonderful, Wonderful", "It's Not For Me To Say" and "Chances Are". He has also received eight gold records for the one million sales mark in albums.

Tickets for the Mississippi River Festival at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville range from $2.50 to $5.50 for reserved seats under the tent and $2 for lawn seating.

New plant area annexed

By a unanimous vote Monday night, the Granite City Council reannexed and annexed the property upon which the Archer Daniels Midland Co. soybean processing plant is being constructed. Also annexed was the grain elevator on the site.

The action adds 25 acres of land along Carill Road to the city and rezones it M-2 (heavy industrial). ADM is constructing a multi-million dollar plant there and hopes to open the facility late this summer, according to spokesmen.

The ADM property is east of the Alton & Southern Railroad tracks. The railroad agreed to annex its right-of-way plus a 50-ft-wide strip of land along the west side of the tracks to solidify the ADM annexation.

The plant was separated from the city line by the railroad's property, allowing Nameoki Township to challenge the annexation. The railroad property also was accepted into the city at Monday night's meeting.

The town discussed acting against Granite City to attempt to stop the annexation. It was charged that the site was not zoned for industrial use and that the annexation would set a precedent for piecemeal dismemberment of Nameoki Township.

The plant will tap onto the city's sanitary sewer after laying an underground forced main sewer from the plant, under the railroad tracks and then north along the 50 foot strip of company property to Fonton Road where it would join the city's sewer. Annexation of the facility was necessary to allow use of the city sewer.

The total cost of the construction has not been announced but the city has agreed to sell $4 1/2 million worth of industrial revenue bonds to help finance the work.

ADM will try to sell the bonds and, if successful, will give title to the soybean plant and property to the city in return for the funds. The company then would lease the facility from the city with the rent being used to retire the bonds. After all bonds have been retired, the city would return the titles to ADM.

The new plant will produce soybean oil and meal and will be equipped to process 1,000 tons or 35,000 bushels of soybeans each day after the first phase of construction. About 45 persons will be employed when the facility opens, spokesmen have said.

The facilities have been designed to be "easily expandable" to about four times that size, a spokesman said, adding that the largest basic equipment available is being purchased which is capable of processing about 4,000 tons of soybeans per day.

The plant was described as "a continuous highly automated process with much of the processing equipment cut-off doors." Modern air pollution control equipment is included in the plans.

The annexation and rezoning motion also brought the former Carill Grain Elevator, now owned by ADM, into the city which the company plans to expand.

A spokesman said the elevator presently has storage capacity for 2.8 million bushels of grain and could be expanded by 1 million to 1 1/2 million bushels capacity if studies confirm the need for the increase.

The company also is planning future developments at the Tri-City Regional Port including a new large loading elevator. Proposed is a four-silo elevator which would employ eight to 12 more persons.

Governor okays $337 million for mental health programs

Gov. Dan Walker signed into law Monday a bill increasing the Department of Mental Health appropriation $19 million to $337.9 million, the largest appropriation in the department's history.

Top priorities in the new department budget are mental retardation, community-based mental health programs, care for the elderly, and improvement of patient care in state institutions, the governor said.

Funding for the mental retardation programs will be increased 12 per cent to $14 million—to approximately $130 million.

Direct-care staff at both Lincoln and Dixon state schools will be increased and additional funds will be made available for day care treatment and purchased care, according to Dr. Lefoy P. Levitt, director.

Community based programs affecting alcoholism, drug abuse and acute mental illness will be expanded. Funding for these programs will be increased by 25 per cent to $83.1 million.

Improved community service programs, Levitt said, "will depend not only on adequate funding, but on assurances by the community organizations delivering the services that the funds will be effectively used."

The governor also said the department would take action to make sure that community activities funded through the grant programs are coordinated with the actions of the department.

Discussing care of the elderly, Gov. Walker said: "I have told Dr. Levitt I am very concerned about our aged in the mental institutions. They often are too easily forgotten. We cannot allow this to happen."

In addition to staffing at Lincoln and Dixon, the additional $14 million for mental retardation will be used for:—operation of the new Ludeman Mental Retardation Center;—operation of the Howe Development Center for adult retarded; —increase in grants for day care treatment services primarily for the mentally retarded;—capital improvements at Lincoln and Dixon; and—increases in purchase of care for mentally retarded persons in private facilities.

Dr. Levitt said that since Jan. 1, the ratio of staff to patient has improved from 1.30 staff for each patient to 1.35 per patient.

The increase appears to be slight, Dr. Levitt said, but shows that the situation is improving rather than being charged.

"We know that the ratio will continue to improve. Moreover, jobs to be eliminated lie in the middle management category," he said.

C. C. Givenrod dies in crash

Clifford Carl Givenrod, 50, of 601 Mitchell St., Benton, a native of Granite City, was injured fatally in an auto accident on Highway 14 about five miles west of Duquoin at 11 p.m. Monday.

Mr. Givenrod's auto reportedly left the roadway and overturned. He was crushed in the wreckage, according to witnesses.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford E. Givenrod, 2747 Washington Ave. The parents were notified of the death at 2:35 a.m. Tuesday by Granite City police.

Mr. Givenrod was a civil engineer and owner of Givenrod & Lipe, consultants, which served as consulting engineers for many Southern Illinois cities and counties, including Benton. He was resident engineer on the tent Lake project and the water pipeline project between Duquoin and Mount Vernon which services numerous cities nearby.

Mr. Givenrod was born in Granite City and educated in the public schools here, graduating from Granite City High School in 1940.

He attended the Engineering College at the University of Illinois and received his bachelor of science degree in civil engineering in 1950. He left not use direct patient care category.

"The appropriations bill signed by the governor is not only a clear index of the governor's commitment to mental health, but will also enable the department to move forward rapidly to accomplish better care, better staffing and better programs."

"The additional amounts will be carefully monitored and supervised to make certain that the spending will produce demonstrable results."

While approving the mental health budget, the governor vetoed on constitutional grounds $950,000 appropriation from the U.S. Mental Health for the Chicago Road Mental Health Center.

The legislature had added an unconstitutional amendment affecting staffing, the governor asserted.

The federal funds do not have to be appropriated. Therefore, the deletion of the item does not affect the availability of the federal funds at Chicago Road, he said.

CLIFFORD GIVENROD

Granite City in 1961. He was a bomber pilot in the U.S. Army Air Corps from 1943 to 1946.

Mr. Givenrod was a 32nd degree Mason of Masonic Lodge 835 of Granite City and was a member of Almad Shrine Temple. He also was a member of the Elks Lodge in Benton.

Surviving besides his parents are his wife, Doris Jean Givenrod; four daughters, Mrs. Prudence Janet Payne of Thompsonville, and Misses Judy Lynn, Susan Kay and Beth Ann Givenrod, at home, and a sister, Mrs. Doris Evers of New Orleans, La.

Funeral services were to be held at 2 p.m. today at a Benton funeral home with burial in the Red Fellows and Masonic Cemetery, Benton.

Bethel O'Connor is wed

Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Maurice A. O'Connor Jr. of Arlington, Va., formerly of Granite City, are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Miss Bethel Christine O'Connor, and Eldon Michael Stoffel. The wedding took place June 21 at St. John's Episcopal Church in Arlington. Officiating at the ceremony was Dr. John H. Rodgers Jr., Dean of Virginia Theological Seminary, and the Rev. Anthony Regas of St. Anthony's Catholic Church. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Miss Melody Crawford and Candace Carson O'Connor, the latter as junior bridesmaid. Dan Tiplon was best man and David O'Connor served as usher. Maurice A. O'Connor III, provided musical selections on the organ. The bride, who attended Granite City Schools, also is the granddaughter of Mrs. Bethel J. Davis, 2148 State St. Following a wedding trip through the mid-west states the newlyweds will reside in Dahlgren, Va.

Women's day Sunday at Galilee Baptist Church

The Cannon Galilee Baptist Church, 307 Allen St., Eagle Park Acres, will observe its annual Women's Day on Sunday, according to the Rev. C. C. Walters, pastor.

Guest speaker at the morning service will be Mrs. Alburine Guice Sands, a member of the Mount Nebo Baptist Church in Madison.

Her topic will be taken from the theme for the day on "Christian Women's Objectives in Combating Evils of Society" arranged by Mrs. Sallie Blakley, chairman of the program.

Mrs. Sands is a graduate of Alabama State University where she earned a B.S. and M. Ed degree and has taught in three different Alabama School systems. She also has taught at the Bluff View Park and Jefferson Schools in District 108, East St. Louis, prior to accepting the position as counselor with District 12 in Madison.

She is the wife of James D. Sands and mother of a daughter and son.

New Hartigan airport effort

Gov. Neil Hartigan on Tuesday began the six-year effort to have a proposed St. Louis area airport located in Illinois.

Hartigan "traveled" to Washington, D.C., for the sixth time this year to attempt to convince federal officials that the airport should be built in Southern Illinois near Waterloo.

Hartigan was scheduled to meet with John Barum, newly-appointed undersecretary to the U.S. Department of Transportation, who will have a voice in the department's final decision on the airport.

"I am convinced that the meeting will be most productive and that the department will soon reach a decision on this site," Hartigan said.

Hartigan first became involved in the airport issue in February 1973 when Governor Dan Walker asked the lieutenant governor to represent him and the people of Illinois in the matter.

Due to Hartigan's persistence, the cooperation of Atty. Gen. William Scott and the entire Illinois Congressional delegation, the chances of Illinois receiving the airport are now at least 50-50, the lieutenant governor believes.

Accompanying Hartigan on the trip were Robert Utison, a former Granite Cityan, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois AFL-CIO, who will convey labor's support for the Illinois site, and Arven Saunders, executive director of the St. Louis Metropolitan Area Airport Authority.

A decision to locate the airport in Illinois would be the best economic news Southern Illinois has had in many years. It would mean fewer young people leaving home for the city, 35,000 more jobs for Southern Illinoisans, less unemployment and welfare and an additional $1,000,000 a year for the economy of Southern Illinois," Hartigan said.

"Numerous studies have demonstrated that the Columbia-Waterloo site is the most desirable of 19 considered in terms of the most important considerations, environmental protection and air traffic safety. I firmly believe our efforts to provide safe and efficient air transportation and air traffic safety will soon reach a successful conclusion. What we are attempting to do is bring about a major public works project which will benefit all the people of Illinois while minimizing disruption to citizens of the area."

William Johnston promoted

William Johnston Jr. has been named assistant sales manager of Simplicity Engineering Co., Danville, Ky., according to Fred K. Schwarz, vice-president and general manager. Simplicity is a wholly owned subsidiary of General Steel Industries, Inc., St. Louis.

Acquired by General Steel in 1969, Simplicity is a leading manufacturer of vibratory equipment for the aggregate, foundry, and mining industries. The firm operates plants in Durand and Galesburg, Ontario, Canada.

Johnston joined Simplicity in 1972 as a marketing assistant, after serving as regional sales manager for the Hastings Division of General Steel.

HOLLYWOOD HOTLINE

Twiggy to star in 'Mary Rose'

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Twiggy has been offered the role of "Mary Rose" in a proposed production of "Peter Pan" and would like to do it as a musical.

First though, she'll star in a movie version of "Mary Rose," playing the role Mia Farrow essayed on the London stage.

Twiggy and her boyfriend-manager, Justin De Ville-neuve, will produce the picture, because, as she explains, "We believe in it. You can't make money the motivation for making a movie. We don't run our lives by any set formula."

"Mary Rose" will be a psychological thriller. Twiggy continues, set in the period extending from the 1920s through the 1940s.

Though she has no expectations of realizing this dream in the immediate future, Miss Twiggy says the American actor she'd most like to work with is George Segal.

"I was absolutely mad about him in 'The Owl and the Pussycat,'" she sighs ecstatically while Justin, by her side, smiles indulgently.

Jo Anne Worley and Roger Perry, who've been touring in "Goodbye, Charlie," would dearly love to team in a television series, she says.

"They've been dating for the past five years and get along as well professionally as they do socially, Jo Anne continues.

"Roger and I work WELL together," she almost coos. "Besides, when we are together, working's more fun, more pleasure... although I do have to watch myself, because I'm sometimes tempted to try to direct him."

"There's no scene stealing between us. It's give and take. "Roger is an excellent actor and comedian."

Jo Anne first saw her fellow when he was rehearsing for a production of "Mr. Roberts."

"I saw him on the stage," she bubbles, "and thought, 'That's for me.'"

Strangely, though, Jo Anne insists she's "not really crazy to get married."

A big girl, Jo Anne has the height and carriage to wear clothes well.

"I remember a neighbor lady telling me when I was growing up, 'Be proud of your height. Throw back your shoulders,'" says Miss Worley who does just that.

At the same time, she admits that she has to count calories constantly, because she gains weight easily.

"When I gain weight," she says, "I try to hide it with clever clothes, but you can't hide anything from the camera."

"I got off desserts, because Roger doesn't eat them. "But I love lox, bagels and cream cheese."

"And... oh, yummy! ... mashed potatoes with gravy."

Ellen Corby, who plays Grandma in "The Waltons," has said a story to the show which will be produced next year.

It's called "The Separation," but, by the time it gets on the air, it could be called something else, because that's the way things go in movies and television.

"There's a certain amount of message in all our stories," Ellen says of "The Waltons," but the message isn't obvious. If you're smart, you don't dictate to people. If you hide your message, finding it becomes a game, and the audience will play it."

Ellen, whose early ambition was to be an actress, arrived in Hollywood in 1932 to become instead, a script supervisor.

"Before that, I'd been a chorus girl," she remembers, "and I'd hated it. I came to Hollywood when I was 20 years old and was given a temporary job as a script supervisor on a picture in which I also had a small acting role."

"That temporary job lasted 11 years."

"During part of that time, I was script girl for Laurel and Hardy."

"My last script job was on 'Murder, My Sweet' with Dick Powell. He's the one who brought me back into acting by giving me a part in a picture with him called 'Cornered.' I played a French maid."

Needless to say, Ellen is pleased to be associated with "The Waltons."

"The older I get, the 'less smart I get,'" she declares. "But Richard (Richard Thomas, who plays John-Bing Walton) is smart and knows it, and he intells his smartness to other people."

"I guess I base the character I play a little on myself. Anybody who lived through the Depression has to have a feeling for it."

Chuck Barris Productions' long-time (seven years) ABC-TV staple "The Dating Game," has been canceled by the network. But the show was so popular, it will be going immediately into syndication — not once a week, but six times!

Surprisingly, the show had recently enjoyed the highest ratings of its telelife. The biggest boost came when it named America's Ten Most Debatable Bachelors.

If you haven't been watching, the chosen few are: Joe Namath, Burt Reynolds, Warren Beatty, James Caan, Peter Revson, Ralph Nader, Woody Allen, Fred Williamson, David Cassidy and Henry Kissinger.

Is your dream male on that list?

How come no Flip Wilson?

Steel trade gap nearly tops nation's total trade deficit

In the first five months of 1973, the U.S. trade deficit in steel mill products nearly equaled the nation's entire international merchandise trade deficit, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute.

Government figures show the value of steel imports during this period exceeded the value of U.S. exports of steel by $765.5 million. This was only $8.7 million less than the entire $764.2 million U.S. merchandise trade deficit for all commodities for January-May 1973.

Contributing to this situation were May's steel imports of 1,604,000 tons—their highest total so far in 1973, and a jump of $53,000 tons over April's 1,551,000 figure.

Through the first five months of 1973, steel imports had reached 6,511,000 tons, an increase of 11.3 percent from the 5,851,000 ton of foreign steel shipped into this country during the comparable period of last year.

The value of steel imports was increasing nearly twice as fast. By the end of May, this year's steel purchases from abroad had a total value of $1,131,086,000. That was an increase of 21.8 percent over the $928,529,000 value for such imports during the first five months of 1972.

Edw. Boyer, 61, dies suddenly

Edward J. Boyer, 61, of 3100 Denver St., was stricken with an apparent heart attack while on his way to work in a garden tractor on his pick-up truck parked on Poag Road, and was pronounced dead at the scene by Edward Werner, Madison County deputy coroner, at 4:20 p.m. Tuesday.

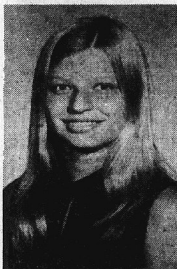

Two unidentified boys found Mr. Boyer lying by the truck as they were returning from fishing and reported it to authorities.

Mr. Boyer was born in Cadott, Mo., and resided in Granite City 55 years. He retired in September 1972 from Teamsters Local 525.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mildred Boyer; three daughters, Mrs. Judi Greer and Mrs. Joyce Gibson, both of Granite City, and Mrs. Betty Weisman of Cleveland, Ohio; and two sons, Leo and Edward, both of Tooele, Utah and Edward Boyer Jr. and Danny Boyer, both of Granite City.

Two brothers, Lacy and Alfred Boyer, both of Granite City, were also survivors. Mr. Boyer was a member of the Granite City and Granite City and Granite City Cement Finishes Club, was a cheerleader for one year, a member of the Junior Red Cross and Girls Athletic Association for two years and member of the Pop Club three years.

She was a member of Junior Achievement last year and now is enrolled in gymnastics at the YMCA.

Donna Holt, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene M. Holt, 1025 Alton Ave., Madison, is attending a two week "Music and Youth at Southern" camp at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

The camp includes practice in band, orchestra, stage band and chorus, along with classes in music theory, history and literature.

3 GC students at music camp

Three Granite City students are among 191 talented teenage musicians participating in a two-week "Music and Youth at Southern" camp at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

The are Alice Cotter, 603 English Place; Patricia Gerlach, 1707 Edison Ave.; and Timothy Holt, 2105 Garfield Ave.

They are attending the camp on scholarships provided by the Nameki Women's Club headed by Mrs. Ted Schaefer, president.

The campers live in university housing and, when allowed free time from study and rehearsals, participate in campus recreational activities.

Guest conductors are Al Posten, band, and Robert Fuller, choir, both from Jonesboro, Ark., and John Wirtz of Oak Park, orchestra. SIUC faculty members complete the staff.

A public concert by the young band, choir and orchestra students will be presented at 7:30 p.m. July 28 in Shryock Auditorium where separate piano recitals will be presented at 3 p.m. the same day.

Washington portrait inspirational

Capitol News Service
Springfield—Across from Gov. Dan Walker's office on the second floor of the Statehouse in Springfield hangs a picture of a man who never held the office of governor.

But he's extremely well-known for another office he once held: that of the first President of the United States from 1789-1797.

This unique painting of George Washington hangs in the rounds for all the visitors to enjoy and to lend inspiration to all future statesmen and politicians.

The large picture, measuring about 8x16 feet, is owned by Mr. and Mrs. August Meyer Sr. of Champeign. It is the loan to Secretary of State Michael Hoviet in his capacity as official custodian of the Capitol complex. The painting was first exhibited in Illinois on Feb. 22, 1967.

Finish artist George Sigurd Wetterhoff-Aspen completed the painting in 1960, a time when Finland was under Russian control. It served as an inspiration to Finns hoping for a revolution similar to the one General Washington led many years ago in America. Their independence was finally achieved following World War I.

Lost for many years, the work made its way to America and was found, nearly discarded, in Washington, D.C., by Mrs. L. C. Arenas of Melvin, Ill. Subsequently it was acquired by the Meyers.

Painted on canvas, the picture depicts a solemn, bearded Washington wearing white breeches and a red coat. He holds the reins of a gray horse in the foreground while cavalrymen and an Indian caver in the background. Apparently set in a forest complete with lake and mountains, the scene appears to take place at dawn or dusk.

The painting is one of several pictures, statues and murals located throughout the Capitol complex. The murals represent events and scenes closely connected with the history of Illinois while the statues and murals depict men credited with helping the "state" achieve its greatness.

Chouteau building plan advanced

A program to construct a Chouteau Township building and garage was moved beyond the talking stage and into the action stage by the town board of auditors Monday night as they selected an architect

The board also set an on-site meeting to discuss the possible purchase of a tract of land on the meeting will be held at 6 p.m. Monday on the Ed Burton representative of the Flippo Associates architectural firm in Alton will be present to evaluate the land's feasibility as a site for the township building.

The Flippo firm was hired by the board Monday night as designers for the building which is to be financed by federal revenue sharing.

The auditors expressed preference for the Burton property over another tract on Slough Road just south of the Chain of Rocks Road Canal Bridge, offered for use by the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

The Corps could offer only a limited lease on the property which would be unsuitable for construction of a building, the auditors said.

The board accepted a revenue sharing check for $9,917, covering the third entitlement period. Total revenue sharing received thus far by the township exceeds $36,000.

The federal funds have been reserved for the township building.

A letter from the Illinois Fair Plan was read informing the board that the township could be declared a Fair Plan Area for insurance purposes if they would request a survey to show the township is deteriorating.

The letter was taken under advisement. Under the Fair Plan, areas unable to obtain insurance for property are made eligible for insurance.

Road and bridge bills totaling $5,091 were paid, including $2,905 from the general road and bridge fund, $1,395 from the new equipment fund and $891 from the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund.

Two bills were rejected by the auditors pending investigation. One was for delivering slag and

Bills reportedly were rejected Madison County as Louis Whitsell, Nameki Township

Supervisor and a member of the Madison County Board, said the county could not hire James Estes, Chouteau highway commissioner, as a subcontractor to do county work.

The bills were for $1,900 at that time. The figures on the bills presented to the town board Monday night were not disclosed but it was indicated they were less than the bills presented to Whitsell earlier.

Charles Beck dies at 65

Charles Beck, 65, of Bull Shoals, Ark., a former resident and businessman in the Quad-Cities, died at 4:45 p.m. Monday at the Boone County Hospital in Harrison, Ark., where he had been a patient since April 10.

Born in Madison, he had resided in this area for 55 years. Prior to his retirement he owned and operated the Beck Heating and Air conditioning Co.

Mr. Beck was a member of the Granite City Elks Lodge and Eagle Aerie. He was a member of St. Peter's Catholic Church in Mount Home, Ark.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Viola (Franklin) Beck; one daughter, Mrs. Marlene Yarmo of Glenwood, Ill.; two sons, Mrs. Dora O'Sullivan of Granite City and Mrs. Frances Werner of Mascoutah, Ill.; a nephew Dale Beck and niece Mrs. Judy Stagner, both of Granite City, and three grandchildren.

Funeral services were held today. Details are given in the obituary column.

MOTORCYCLIST HURT
Doug Cooper, 17, of 5029 Lewis Ave., Mitchell, was injured when his motorcycle slipped on wet pavement and tipped onto the concrete at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Maryville and West Chain of Rocks roads. He was admitted to St. Elizabeth Hospital with injuries to his left hip and head.

Builders, unions negotiate

Negotiations between the Southern Illinois Builders Association and six union locals continued this week on contracts which are due to expire July 31.

Spokesman for the locals and the SIBA declined to comment this week in the progress of the negotiations, noting it was too early in the meetings for public comment.

SIBA, the representative of builders in 38 Southern Illinois counties, also is representing the Southern Illinois Contractors Association (SICA) in negotiations on road work packages with two union locals.

Attempting to settle in new contracts with both SIBA and SICA are Laborers International Union of North America Local 397 of Granite City and Cement Finishers Local 90 of East St. Louis.

Meeting to negotiate contracts with SIBA only are the Carpenters District Council of Madison County and Vicinity in Mitchell, Plasterers' Local 90 of East St. Louis and the Latins union, which represents about 50 workers.

An SIBA spokesman said individual negotiations are being conducted with each local by SIBA negotiating committees.

Hiring a employee to renovate the second and third floors of the old Edwardsville bank building at a salary not to exceed $7 per hour was approved. The space will be occupied by the office of the state's attorney in compliance with a directive by the chief judge to provide additional court facilities.

H. Jack Frandsen of Alhambra, named chairman of the land use committee to succeed the late Alton May, reported that plans are being made to update subdivision controls and zoning regulations.

He asked the members, for suggestions regarding modular homes, mobile homes, septic tanks in subdivisions and a disaster clause which is not contained in the current zoning ordinance.

Because of the lack of the disaster clause, Chouteau Island flood victims were unable to place mobile homes on their properties immediately and must go through the regular process of applications and hearings, causing delays at least until September, it was reported.

The board approved purchases of a three-quarter ton truck for the Civil Defense Department from the Brewer Motor Co. of Granite City on a low bid of $5,200 and of a new truck for the parks department from the Bo Seuckman agency of Collinsville in a low bid of $5,412.

The board elected Mrs. Margaret May of Alton to succeed her late husband, Alton May, as a member of the board. She was appointed to the central purchasing committee.

Robert Ceruffer of Collinsville was named to the board of the Madison County Tuberculosis Association.

The annual audit by R. C. Scheff & Co., certified public accountants, was adopted.

Authorized were calls for bids for installation of 13 heat detectors for the county nursing home to meet state safety standards and two-way radio equipment for the rabies control department.

Approved were payrolls and claims totaling $949,643.

Burglar cuts glass
A burglar gained entrance to the home of Catherine Davis, 2127 Fourteenth St., by cutting a hole in a kitchen window with a glass cutter, then reaching through and removing a window pane, it was reported at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday. The house was ransacked. It was not known what was stolen.

NEW TENNIS COACH at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, which is instituting the sport for the first time, is Kent Walter DeMars, left, who is greeted by SIUE athletic director Bob Guelker. DeMars was tennis coach at Assumption High School where he prepped.

DeMars to head Cougar tennis
In addition to coaching the Cougar tennis team, DeMars will be an instructor in SIUE's health, recreation and physical education department.

The addition of tennis brings to eight the number of varsity teams at SIUE.

DeMars, 38, comes to SIUE from a teaching and coaching job at Assumption High School in East St. Louis where he himself graduated in 1961. He earned a bachelor of arts degree in biology and chemistry at St. Mary's University in San Antonio, Tex., in 1966, and took a MAT in psychology at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, in 1972.

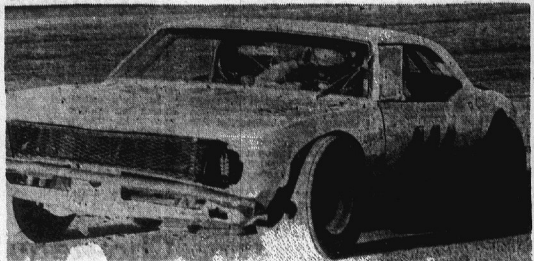

A standout tennis player in the area from his pre-high school days, DeMars played the No. 1 slot at St. Mary's for four years. In his seven years as varsity tennis coach at Assumption, DeMars' teams have always had winning records. His team posted a 16-3 record last season.

He is married and lives in Belleville.

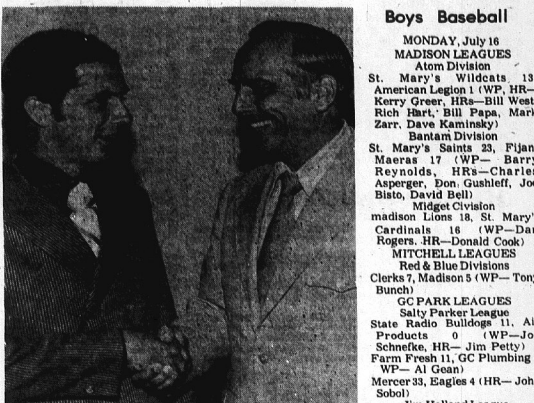

Trauma center functions told
Bob Miller, trauma center coordinator for this area, and Dick Mirell and Bill Eahart, ambulance service drivers at Mercer Mortuary were guest speakers at the Wednesday noon meeting of the Madison Rotary Club in the Madison Rotary Recreation Center.

The men explained the functions of the local trauma center and problems in emergency rooms. They also explained and demonstrated some of the latest on-the-scene emergency equipment.

Rotary President Wade James announced that next week he will call a board of directors meeting to discuss upcoming club activities.

A WINNER at the Tri-City Speedway, Wib Spalding of Ponton Beach, will attempt to gain his third consecutive feature victory Friday night. Spalding is the defending track season champion and holds the strong point lead this season. Time trials Friday will begin at 7:30 p.m. with racing at 8:30 p.m.

Legion Post 307 loses 15-8

Venice-Madison Post 307 bowed to Belleville 15-8 Tuesday night in American Legion Baseball at Belleville.

Post 307 had eight hits and five errors and Belleville gathered 14 hits and committed three errors.

Starting pitcher Tim Timmons for Venice-Madison was hindered by the loss. He was relieved in the third inning by Bill Hendricks.

Leading better for the night for Venice-Madison was Wilson, who was 2-for-3 at the plate with an RBI double, a run, run home run and an RBI sacrifice fly ball.

Kevin Werner was 2-for-3, scoring one run, Carl Turner was 2-for-4, scoring two runs, and Thad Lakatos had a RBI single. The other three Venice-Madison runs were unearned due to Belleville errors.

Legion action was weekend when Venice-Madison host Wood River at 2 p.m. Sunday. On Monday Venice-Madison will journey to O'Fallon and Granite City will travel to Alton for 6 p.m. contest to close out the regularly scheduled seasons for both teams.

Legion division baseball playoffs planned Aug. 2-5 at Belleville

Boosters to host Van's, Mercer on road

Merced Mortuary will be on the road for games at Roxana at 2 p.m. Saturday and at Mollitor Motors of Collinsville at 1 p.m. Sunday while St. Mary's 2 boosters will host Van's of East Alton at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Merced 3-0 has lost twice to both Roxana and Mollitor earlier this season and will be looking to even the score.

Coach Wendell Corey will use either Ron Lawless, Mark Adams, or the mound Saturday on a Vic Resnick on Sunday.

Leading the league with the bat is Don Harris, who is hitting an even .500 with 14 hits out of 28 trips to the plate.

Corey's main trouble with the team this season has been the abstinence some players not showing up at the games. "I don't know what my starting lineup is until just before the game," Corey said.

St. Mary's (3-7), who earlier in the year dropped a close one to Van's 4-3, will be out to upset the league's Blue Division leader on Sunday.

Corey has the lineup for St. Mary's will be catcher Al Bregan, one of the club's leading hitters. "We are about due for some breaks, because we lost five of our games this season so far by one run each time."

We will have to start to move now for first place or else we will not catch them and will have to remain to battle with the other teams for second place."

playing a great second base, to back up brother Frank.

We'll have to play even until the late innings and then use our speed in the bases to capitalize on any breaks that come our way," Corey said.

Evel Knievel here Saturday

Evel Knievel, motorcycle daredevil, who has appeared before thousands of audiences jumping his motorcycle pit cars and performing other stunts, will return to St. Louis International Raceway south of Madison Saturday night.

Knievel appeared here last year and cleared 13 autos on a ramp-to-ramp motorcycle jump. He has said this year he will attempt a turn over 19 trucks while here.

Saturday night's program also will include competition between two nitro-methane fuel burning funny cars. Scheduled are the "Superstition" Camaro of Curt Wasson and Ira Hollenbe's "Superstar" Mustang.

A jill elimination program is scheduled with the St. Louis area pro-stock cars headlining the entries.

Adult tickets for the event will be $5 and pit passes will be available for an additional $2. Spectators displaying red, white and blue pit pass stubs from last weekend's event will be given free pit passes.

Later tavern hours

The Madison County Board adopted a new liquor control ordinance which permits taverns in unincorporated areas to remain open an hour later during its meeting Wednesday morning.

New closing hours are 2 a.m. except on Saturday nights when taverns may remain open until 3 a.m.

It was the first major revision of the county liquor ordinance since 1934, according to Edward Vourard of Alton, who said stronger controls were needed and it was necessary to bring the law up to date in compliance with state statutes.

A liquor license fee is $400 per year, an amount raised previously from $300 by the board. Vourard said the license fee will be adjusted upwards later.

Vourard said the license committee considered complaints of discrimination by the Madison County Tavern Owners Association who said taverns in some county areas legally remain open longer.

Objections were voiced that it would add to enforcement problems of the Madison County Sheriff's Department and other police agencies and that some taverns would be forced to close longer to undesirable elements.

Vourard said that "We need beer taverns to some extent because bad clientele goes to them."

An amendment submitted by Roger Elble of Wood River to retain the old hours was defeated 15-6.

Under the ordinance, persons aged 19 and 20 may be served beer and wine effective Oct. 1. The license chairman noted that taverns will be required to have an open view into the interior before 1974 licenses can be obtained.

FIRE DAMAGES TRAILER

A 36-foot trailer belonging to Jewell Lem, 1704 Sycamore Ave., was damaged by fire 10-40 p.m. Wednesday. Long Lake Fire Chief John Kartechick said the loss was estimated at $1,000 to the trailer and $200 to the contents.

Paddlers dunk Gas Light in meet

The Paddlers Swim Club of Granite City upset Gas Light in Collinsville 31:34-30:44 Tuesday night to win its record at 2.9 in dual meets this year.

Eleven team records were set as the Paddlers continued to improve under the direction of Coach Cliff.

The Paddlers got off to a good start in the diving competition with a 1-2 tie.

Best individual was Dave Lindsey, 15-17 boys, and Alice Miller, 15-17 girls, captain.

Team records set in the swimming competition were 1-2 tie.

Girls, 8-and-under 100-yard medley relay, Susie Ponce, Becky Barnes, Laney Winsler, Michelle Tankley, 1:33.3.

Keen makes comeback at cycle race

Neil Keen of St. Louis, the 1971 motorcycle racing champion at Tri-City Speedway, who has been plagued by mechanical problems for the past 1 1/2 years, made his comeback Tuesday night, sweeping every event he entered.

Keen began the evening by touring the quarter-mile dirt oval faster than any of the other 90 riders to lead the time trials. He then defeated national rider Mike Kidd of Texas to win the Keen then defeated national rider Mike Kidd of Texas to win the first heat event, led a full field of riders to the checkers in the second semi-final and defeated Charles Chapelle of Flint, Mich., all the way in the 10-lap final.

GC Legion wins 1-4

Granite City Post 113 ran past Highland 11-4 with the game being called in the sixth inning because of darkness in an American Legion baseball game yesterday at Wilson Park.

John Stanton, who was credited with the win, was injured in the fourth inning when he was hit by a pitched ball on his throwing arm. Randy Sturdivant took over the mound and was relieved by Mike Stanton in the fifth inning because of his ball control problems.

Granite City had nine hits and no errors and Highland had five hits and one error.

The lines scores were, for GC, 2-0-6-2-4, and for Highland, 0-1-0-0-3.

In GC's big fourth inning, Steve Ashby and Greg Linhart walked and John Stanton was hit by the pitch to load the bases with Bill Carr running for Stanton.

Jack Scarborough came through with a single driving in Ashby and Linhart and Tim Burns singled to score Carr. Back-to-back doubles by Mike Martinez and Mike Stanton scored Scarborough, Burns and Martinez, with Martinez credited with one RBI and Stanton with two.

Top batting honors for the night went to Scarborough, 2-for-2 at the plate Martinez, 2-for-2, Mike Stanton, a double with two RBIs, Randy Sturdivant, a triple with two RBIs and Ashby and Linhart, each with a single.

GC Legion's next game will be against the St. Louis Pirates at Wilson Park at 6 p.m. today in a non-league contest.

Some products are already using the metric system of measurement, such as optical lenses, cigarettes, imported wines, photographic film, skis, bearings and metric tools. For years, metrics have been the language of the scientist and pharmaceutical worker.

A Commerce Department study indicated that not only should conversion begin with education, as opposed to technology, but that the elimination of fractions and computations transferring feet to miles and inches to yards will save instruction time.

The main premise, when the conversion begins in the schools, will be "think metric." Not only would the students, and their parents, be taught that the system is based on units of ten, but they must use them in their daily lives, according to education experts.

And the system isn't really that hard, the experts say. Everything is computed by intervals of 10: 10 millimeters equals 1 centimeter; 10 centimeters equals 1 decimeter; 10 decimeters equals 1 meter; 10 meters equals 1 decameter, etc.

Of course, it may take a little getting used to. Imagine how it would have sounded when it was announced that Secretariat had won the Belmont by 1 kilometer.

Sound as if you're listening in on an British lesson in mathematics? Well, it could be or it could be you're getting a preview of what may come within 10 years in the American school system if the impending conversion to the metric system becomes a reality.

A spokesman from the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction has indicated that plans are already under way to begin studying the conversion.

However, nothing tangible has been done at this time.

The conversion to an international standard of weights and measurements is not a new idea. John Quincy Adams recommended adoption of the metric system as far back as 1821, but nothing was done.

Then in 1968 Congress passed the Metric Study Act which, in 1972, recommended a conversion to the metric system.

Recognizing U.S. dependence upon international ties and world trade, it is expected that Congress will initiate legislation this year to establish the 10-year conversion program. At the present time, over 90 per cent of the world

MEET ME IN ST. LOUIS --- Meet me at the zoo --- that's the duet that Robert Frueh, curator of mammals at the St. Louis Zoo, and a playful Kokak bear cub might be singing. The cub looks cuddly, but one swipe with his razor-sharp two-inch-long claws could mean no shaving problems for a long time to come. The bear pits (right), built in 1920, are the forerunner of the natural look in animal enclosures that the zoo is striving to attain for all its mammals.

ZOO NEWS Animals will be placed in more natural areas

By SUE KENNEDY
Copley News Service

ST. LOUIS -- It's the biggest thing in zoo maintenance since the cage.

At the St. Louis Zoo animal lovers will no longer have to grimace at the sight of their mammalian friends behind bars, for the zoo is changing its whole concept of animal confinement, according to Robert Frueh, curator of mammals.

"For a while it will look like we've kind of depopulated the zoo, but we're actually regrouping the animals to allow people to see them in more natural surroundings," Frueh said.

The pervasive atmosphere will be of one nature at its most "natural." Instead of caging animals singly or in pairs, whole families and groupings of species will be shown in relation to their natural environment.

"Animals are found naturally in the wild in groups, herds, troops or whatever, and they show normal behavior only in these groups," Frueh said.

Cages will be ripped out and "displays" set up. Plastic or nylon vines, plants and granite rock formations will abound inside Plexiglas enclosures. Beginning with the monkey house, three or four cages will be absorbed into one large display.

"Everything in the display has to be indestructible. We can't have normal vegetation. A rubber tree would last about two minutes."

"In the wild, an animal doesn't live in one place. We have to be able to tear down the displays and completely hose out the area for sanitation purposes."

"But don't think just because an animal is behind bars and it's sitting on a wooden bench instead of tree limb that it doesn't exhibit normal behavior," Frueh said.

"We actually have to influence the psychology of people as much as the psychology of animals. A shelf is an adequate resting place, but the viewer still sees a wooden shelf rather than a rock outcrop."

"Animals will be presented in a different light, rather than a bunch of caged up convicts. Urban people have been caged up in cities and now there is focus on construction of life centers -- a livable space rather than a concrete box. Same is true of animals."

"We started with the right idea in the bear pit complex in 1920 -- that should've caught on. But it kind of went into the dark ages, like when they knew the earth was round 4,000 years ago, but it didn't catch on till much later," Frueh added.

Animal behavior, grooming, nurturing, dominance, territoriality -- are phenomena that zoologists now want people to view. When only two animals are confined, behavior becomes exaggerated or abnormal. If one animal is extremely dominant and the other submissive, the submissive one will be traumatized.

The dominant animal will only have one escape route to release his aggression on, Frueh explained. "With more animals, every time the dominant animal needs to trounce on somebody, it will pick a different animal, which spreads out the pressure of dominance."

Now many newborn have to be taken to the three-acre Children's Zoo and placed in incubators to survive. "Mother leopards, for example, do not have the right conditions in their cages to feel secure enough for the 'mothering process,' so babies have to be taken away from them to receive adequate care."

"We want people to see animals raising their own offspring. We can raise animals till they're coming out of our ears, but it's so mechanical," Frueh added.

It will be much better than just having people look at signs, saying "Oh, this one's from Africa," like a museum, Frueh believes. Rather, people will comment on the animal's behavioral aspects, such as grooming. Already, wall displays describing the entire life cycle of an animal have been installed next to some cages.

The zoo's new Natural History Museum, displaying live fauna, a pioneer in display, has been a model for the zoo, Frueh said.

Species propagation or breeding is the tool with which St. Louis Zoo curators hope to enlarge their representative animals into groups.

"We like to make our animals self-sufficient and the long-range goal is to reproduce all our own groups, so we don't have to depend on imports."

"Animals have been exploited and we must now minimize our need to go out and get wild animals. There are some 200 to 300 zoos and research institutions in America. We need to keep tapping wild sources."

"Countries are now realizing the potential for tourism and conservation of natural animals, and are unwilling to export."

Frueh said he visualizes that once the program ma-

Illinois Power appeals rate

Illinois Power Co. yesterday announced it is appealing to the courts the decision of the Illinois Commerce Commission denying a rehearing and reconsideration requested by the company in a May 16 rate order by the commission.

On that date the commission ruled that the company is entitled to an annual increase of $8,700,000 in electric revenues based on 1972 usage. The increase of $9,367,000 on that basis.

The company contends that the increase granted will not meet the company's financial needs. Also questioned in the rehearing request was the commission use of an original cost base in its computations.

That concept and other matters in the order will now be tested in the courts. The suit is being filed in the circuit court for the Seventh Judicial Circuit in Springfield.

H. L. Wilson dies suddenly

Herschel Logan Wilson, 66, of 115 Wilson Park Drive, a two-year resident of Granite City, was pronounced dead at home at 6:10 p.m. Wednesday by Edward Werner, Madison County deputy coroner.

According to the family, his wife tried to wake him at 6 p.m. and when he did not awaken, notified the coroner. Mr. Wilson had been under the care of an East St. Louis doctor several years for a heart condition.

He was born in Louisville, Ill., resided in East St. Louis prior to moving to this area two years ago.

Before he retired, Mr. Wilson owned and operated the Wilson Stables and Wilson Mobile Service, both located in East St. Louis.

Mr. Wilson was a member of the Rosemont Baptist Church in East St. Louis. Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Mary (Hilford) Wilson; three sons, Harold Wilson of Florida, Ill., Kenneth Wilson of Belleville and Glenn Wilson of West Virginia; a daughter, Mrs. Luke (Joan) Wrischnick of Granite City; a sister, Mrs. Herbert (Pauline) Bancroft of Anderson, Ind.; nine grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral arrangements are given in the obituary column.

Slain man found on campus

The body of a St. Louis man who had been shot nine times was found on the campus of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville at 4:30 a.m. yesterday by Dale Hayden of Edwardsville.

The victim, identified as Alvin "Billy" Thompson, 33, of St. Louis, was found on the edge of Bluff Road South of Poag Road, with bullet wounds to the back, left arm, left hip, left wrist, left thigh and a wound to his temple where he had been shot at point-blank range, according to investigators.

Officials here and in St. Louis are investigating whether Thompson was an ex-convict, was involved with narcotics traffic in St. Louis. Also being studied is whether Thompson could have been murdered elsewhere and his body dumped where it was found.

The wounds apparently were made by at least one automatic revolver, according to Jerry McGhee, an FBI security officer. A 9 mm. bullet was found at the scene, he said.

Hayden told Madison County sheriff's deputies he was driving on Bluff Road when he saw what he thought was the body of an animal at the edge of the roadway.

He said he turned his car around at Poag Road and looked for a closer look. When he saw it was a man, he attempted to call the sheriff's department and after unsuccessful attempts to call, he drove to the office to report the incident.

Deny custody

The children of Mrs. Connie Warrack, 2016 Sixth St., East Moline, were held to be neglected by Third Judicial Circuit Judge William Johnson after a hearing yesterday at the Madison County Juvenile Detention Home.

The judge found that the children had been in an "en vironment injurious to their welfare," and ordered that they remain in foster homes pending a disposition hearing to be scheduled within 30 days.

The children were placed in the temporary custody of the state June 25, two weeks after the death of their mother, 21½ years old, died at St. Elizabeth Hospital of pneumonia and multiple wounds to the head and body," according to Madison County sheriff's office reports. An autopsy report was not allowed in evidence at yesterday's hearing.

A coroner's jury is to determine the cause of death after an investigation into the child's death is concluded. The possible filing of criminal charges against a man is being considered, according to Nicholas Byron, state's attorney.

Many state fund bills are vetoed

Who do you believe? Gov. Daniel Walker on Tuesday announced he has cut $1 million from legislative appropriations by veto and reduction veto procedures. He said the Assembly led by Sen. President William Harris and House Speaker Robert Blair would have forced tax boosts except for the governor's action.

Blair yesterday called it "a cheap, headline-grabbing stunt" involving inflated and duplicate figures and improperly counting bond and revenue bills that are not appropriations.

Blair said Walker included some budget figures twice and also counted future years while discussing one year.

Acting on 71 bills, the governor vetoed a $60 million reimbursement to counties for local personal property taxes and $57 million to fund a new state education aid formula. He slashed transportation and pension finding, and said most of the bills he killed were "special interest" legislation.

STUDY TAX RAISE
A resolution calling for a 4-cent per $100 assessed valuation tax levy for construction of special education classrooms in the Madison School District is to be considered by the district's board of education at its meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in the board office, 1707 Fourth St., Madison.

Pipeline gas from high-sulfur Illinois coal by 1980s

Copley News Service
Washington—The Interior Department is moving toward development of clean pipeline gas from the high-sulfur coal of the Illinois fields by the 1980s.

Stevenson, D-III., who has charged that federal funding of coal conversion has been miserably, particularly in view of the 1979 crunch in the Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton has announced that the department's Office of Coal Research (OCR) is awarding an $18,180,000 contract to the Institute of Gas Technology, Chicago, to develop "a practical and economical method of using coal char to produce hydrogen gas."

Discussing the process, an OCR official explained that "char" is a residue of raw coal after its conversion to a gas or liquid and that it retains about one-third of coal's original energy content.

Hydrogen is an "intermediate step" in the production of pipeline-quality gas from coal. The end product sought is methane gas, a clean-burning fuel meeting rigorous anti-pollution standards.

Congressional criticism of federal coal research, such as that voiced by Stevenson, the ranking OCR official said it is valid. "He is trying to be constructive; we are underfunded."

He viewed the new 25-month development contract as a step toward using Illinois coal and predicted that such research will gather momentum.

Discussing the energy crunch, he said it is more than simply a fuel shortage. It involves strategic and national security considerations in America's increasing reliance on foreign petroleum production.

GC budget action due tonight

A revised budget proposal for Granite City's 1973-74 fiscal year—projecting total expenditures of $1,627,205—was submitted to City Council members Monday night, but failed to reach passage stage when some aldermen protested the figure is excessive.

Although Alderman Roy Poulos, chairman of the council's ordinance committee read the bill and moved that it be placed on first reading, he later withdrew the motion in response to a motion from the council met in special session and therefore devote a full evening to budget proposals.

As a result, the council adjourned its Monday night meeting until a p.m. tonight. After several aldermen contended the budget total is "far too high" and that "we'll have to cut the fat out of it," Alderman Gerald Parmley, chairman of the finance committee which drew up the original budget draft, made a motion that the council act on each budget item in Monday night's session, "even if it takes all night."

The motion was defeated by a no votes to 6 in favor. On a suggestion by Alderman Clyde Boyd who served as mayor pro tem in the absence of Mayor Paul Schuler, the council agreed to adjourn the regular meeting until tonight, with Parmley the only alderman who said he could not attend the adjourned meeting.

Parmley, noting that he would not be present for the additional budget meeting, called for a roll call vote on a motion that the hiring of seven police officers be officially determined at that time.

Salaries to pay seven additional policemen are included in the proposed budget. Poulos objected, remarking, "This budget has cut the fat out of the city."

Alderman Walter Noon told the council that "You say you don't have money to fix the streets, yet you are going to hire seven more policemen."

Alderman Emerald Daves and William Dallas also spoke against hiring as many as seven men, although both said they were aware the city needs them.

Parmley's motion to confirm the budget item was defeated by no votes to 5 in favor. The new budget figure presented Monday night was only a slight drop below the original budget proposal of $1,707,480 presented in the council's July 2 meeting.

While the total is a substantial increase over the aggregate budget of $1,590,771 last year, it includes an $800,000 item for repair of sewer breaks in the Namecki area, and $727,100 in expenditures to be made out of federal revenue sharing funds.

The budget must be approved and published by the end of this month. Council members were notified Monday night that a claim is to be made against the city by the family of Michael Collins, Granite City youth who was shot and wounded fatally by a police officer on a tavern parking lot May 22. The notice was given by Goldenbergh and the police committee on a law firm.

An ordinance setting new salaries for the 1973-74 fiscal year was presented, but action was delayed at the request of Alderman Sam Whitmer, chairman of the negotiating committee, who said that new working agreements with city employees have been disrupted by new demands for members of the police department.

Whitmer noted that an agreement had been worked out with employee representatives of all departments, but renewed demands for policemen would bring a salary raise for that department to 7 per cent rather than the 6 per cent figures previously agreed upon for all employees. He said meetings on the issue were to be held this week.

The aldermen approved payment of $55 to the Illinois State Fire and Police Commission to permit the new members of the Granite City Board of Fire and Police Commissioners to become members.

A request by the fire and police board that funds be provided to send the chiefs of the police and fire departments to a meeting of the state commission at the University of Illinois on Aug. 18 was referred to the police committee and the fire and water committee for a recommendation.

Motorcycle safety stressed in course

Copley News Service—The Illinois Supreme Court ruled unconstitutional the law requiring motorcycle riders to wear helmets.

Every motorcycle rider must be protected by glasses, goggles or a transparent shield. A motorcycle operator may not pass another vehicle going the same way on the right the unobstructed pavement on the right is at least eight feet wide. . . a passenger on a motorcycle may not sit astride the seat.

These are just a sampling of Illinois motorcycle laws. If you're a motorcycle operator but aren't familiar with them, they may cost you a fine, a license revocation or your life.

Last year, motorcycles, motor scooters and motorbikes were involved in 127 fatal accidents which accounted for 4.1 per cent of the total number of accidents resulting in deaths in Illinois.

And they're growing in number. For example, 13,792 licenses were issued for motorcycles and motorbikes in Illinois during 1972, according to figures from the secretary of state's office. This represents an increase of 18,000 over the 1971 figures of 13,476.

To meet the increasing concern over motorcycle safety, Southern Illinois University at Carbondale is conducting a "first-of-a-kind" motorcycle safety training program. The first session was held the early part of July with another scheduled for Aug. 13-24 in the campus.

The motorcycle safety sessions are part of a highway safety program held at SIUC and are designed for college-level safety center personnel and practicing high school driver education teachers. They will stress motorcycle safety theory and practice as well as incorporate "lots of actual driving," according to Larry Lindauer of the university's safety center.

About 20 participants per session are expected to take part in the program which is jointly sponsored by SIUC and the National Motorcycle Industry Council's Safety in Education Fund.

The Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction's safety education division has sent three of its personnel to serve as acting consultants during the program.

7 key jobs to non-Illinoisans

By AL MANNING
Copley News Service—Springfield—If there is one policy of the Walker administration with which rank-and-file politicians consistently disagree, it is the policy of hiring out-of-state people for top jobs.

Republicans and Democrats alike complain that the governor should have state people within the state boundary to help him run the government.

About one-third of his directors, seven, are from other parts of the nation. Pennsylvania tops the list with three: Langhorne Bond, Transportation, $40,000; Robert Alphin, Revenue, $30,000; and Allyn Sieloff, Corrections, $25,000.

Cameron West of North Carolina, executive director of the Board of Higher Education, earns the most, $45,000. Others include Jerome Miller of Massachusetts, Children and Family Services, $20,000; David Fogel of Minnesota, executive director of the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission, $33,000; and Hal Hiley of Ohio, Bureau of the Budget, $35,000.

In addition, at least two out-of-state assistant directors have been hired at $27,000. They are Ronald Stacker of California, Insurance, and Sam Griffin, New York, Finance.

It was anticipated immediately after the election that Walker would bring in some out-of-state people because he said he wanted to find the best possible person for each position. Although geographic balance from within the state was a factor, the over-riding consideration was the merit of the individuals, he stressed.

As a practical matter, a new state constitution removed some limitations that had faced other governors. Alvin Walker might have not wanted to hire people who were linked to either Richard Ogilvie or Paul Simon, both of whom he defeated in 1972.

The administration points out that national searches were made in other areas, such as state police and health agencies, and people from Illinois were selected.

It doesn't matter now, though. They're all Illinoisans.

Offer course in sailing

How to come about, when to jib and which direction is leeward or aft, are all part of basic instruction taught in a mini-course on sailing at Tower Lake at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

The mini-course in sailing, usually two or three two-hour sessions, is available to community groups, SIUE students and employees. The course offers instruction in basic seamanship and sailing maneuvers.

Upon completion of the course, the student receives a certificate showing his sailing ability.

"We wanted to create another recreational activity at Tower Lake this summer," said Ed Bigham, director of the recreation program.

According to Bigham, there are three qualified student instructors and a fleet of nine sailboats.

"We've had good response so far especially in getting community groups to sign up," Bigham said.

Anyone interested in further information may contact Bigham at SIUE, phone 692-2200.

Tower Lake hours for all recreational activities are from noon to 7 p.m. daily.

Mother of GC woman dies

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon in Mount City, Ill. for Mrs. Mattie Patterson Dorance, 78, of Mount City, mother of two Granite City women, Mrs. Dorance died Friday at Elizabeth Hospital in Belleville.

Survivors include four daughters: Mrs. John (Willie Mae) Reed and Mrs. Lonnie (Mary Alice) Reed, both of Granite City, Mrs. Ernest (Nannie) Floyd of Mount City and Mrs. Dorothy Carter of Chicago, one brother, George Oliver of Norwalk, N. J.

Two sisters, Mrs. Louis Atton of Plymouth, Mich., and Mrs. Hoppie Fitzgerald of Mount City, seven grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren, three stepchildren and several stepgrandchildren. Her husband, George Dorance, died in July 1970.

REPORTS BEATING
Calvin Branch, 16, of 34 Lee Wright Homes, Venice, reported at 10:35 p.m. Monday that a man beat him and struck his leg with a blackjack at Calhoun and Weaver streets in Venice. He said the man pointed something at him which he thought was a gun and Branch reacted to safety.

Madison street costs cut

By WALTER STRANGE
Press-Record Staff Writer
The Madison City Council Tuesday night approved a 1973-74 city budget of $945,530, an increase of $1,121 over that of the previous fiscal year.

The new budget projects expenditures of $76,237 out of the general fund and $148,992 in seven other separate accounts.

The Street and Alley department received a budget of $90,574, a cut of $40,915 from last year's total of $131,489. Two budget items for resurfacing streets and purchase of a dump truck were not included in the new budget.

According to Street Superintendent Elmer Smith, the old process of oil and chipping streets has been abandoned. Smith said he is working on plans to asphalt streets.

The new budget allows $22,050 for street materials such as asphalt, stone, sand cement and oil, an increase of $10,050. Smith reported he is working on a five-year plan for resurfacing Madison streets.

The largest budgeted item is the Police department, $324,501, an increase of $9,348 over last year. The major portion of the increase is a raise of 5.5 per cent in the base salary of police officers.

New budget items for 1973-74 include a Summer Youth Employment program at $4,000, an Emergency Employment program, $6,000, and a working cash fund, $10,000.

Departmental budget increases include the executive department, up $8,272 to a new total appropriation of $22,720; legislative, up $300 to a total of $23,049; legal, up $1,000 to $14,125; fire department, up $4,825 to $18,465.

Other increases are: street lighting, up $6,230 to a total of $124,000; garbage collection, up $22,316 to $124,202; police pensions, up $1,600 to $40,000; public library, up $1,375 to $20,135; playground and recreation fund, up $8,810 to $38,967.

Decreases in budget projections were made in the finance department which has a budget of $20,051, down $403; health and humane department, budgeted at $7,460, down $3,111; municipal buildings, $24,975, down $489; inspection department, $7,270, down $599; electric, $1,575, down $20; and the industrial site, $23,260, down $25,000.

In other business, the council declared Sept. 22 this year and thereafter on the fourth Tuesday of September as Madison Hunting and Fishing Day by proclamation of Mayor Mike Sasyk.

A discussion was held concerning private swimming pools and whether regulations are needed. It was felt that while pools are under state regulation, the legal department will check into the matter.

First Ward Alderman Don Reeves said he feels Gene Robertson and Curtis King, city health inspectors, are doing a good job in checking hazardous and old property, but there is need of an even greater effort to clean up the city.

Mayor Sasyk reminded the aldermen of the council meeting next Tuesday at 7 p.m. in City Hall and said they can expect a long meeting.

According to the mayor, the agenda next week will include a discussion of a street improvement program, senior citizens programs, zoning and business licenses.

2 hurt in crash on Route 157
Mrs. Dixie Jackson, 19, of Edwardsville, and Mike Loftus, 20, of 3101 Ash Ave., were injured when their automobiles collided on Route 157 about four miles north of West Chain of Rocks Road at 6:25 p.m. Tuesday.

Mrs. Jackson was admitted to St. Elizabeth Hospital with injuries to her skull and spine. Loftus was treated at the local hospital for cuts to his right forearm and over his right eye and cuts and bruises to his chest and right leg. He was transferred to Barnes Hospital, St. Louis.

SCHOOL BURGLARY
A soft drink vending machine was broken open and about $8 in liquid was taken during a burglary at Blair School in Venice, it was reported at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday. Entry was gained by breaking a window in the north side of the school.

Prudential conference

Eighteen representatives of Prudential's Granite City district agency, located at Namecki Village, attended the company's district agencies' regional business conference at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal, Canada.

The group consisted of William F. Curcuro Jr., district manager; Robert Spengler, Merle Hiestand, Bobby Hill and Rich Rehg, sales managers; and Agents Russ Lindow, Bill Weathers, Wiley Whitfield, Fred Woods, Stan Brown, J. C. Smith, Richard Barrett, W. Runkel, Vern Gaskill, Mark Lindow, Monty Vaughn, Roger Fridy and Bob Rowe.

Representatives from Prudential district agencies in the Illinois region attended the three-day program, which provided instruction in specialized insurance subjects. Executives from the company's Mid-America home office, Chicago, also participated.

SHOPPING Nylon strongest fiber

By JOYCE ROARK
Copley News Service

Of all the synthetic fibers on the market today, nylon is the strongest as well as the first to be developed.

In 1927 Du Pont Co. started a research program in hopes that some new scientific discoveries would be made that could be of value in chemical advancement in industry.

They chose Wallace Carothers to head the research group. By accident, one day in 1930, a polymer, later called nylon, was discovered. Its properties were studied and further research was done to find a way to produce this fiber in a practical and economic manner.

A pilot plant to mass produce the fiber was set up in 1939 by Du Pont in Seaford, Del. It's said that the first pound of nylon fiber produced there cost $27 million.

Those nylon stockings we find in practically every store nowadays first appeared on the market on May 15, 1940.

The development of nylon was the first time man had stopped trying to imitate the silk worm and had used his own initiative and intelligence to create a fiber.

The outstanding characteristics of nylon is its versatility. It's used to make automobile tires and sheer hosiery. It can be used alone or in blends where its strength and resistance to wear are important.

Nylon is colorfast, resists wear, resists mildew and is not damaged by perspiration. Moths can't hurt it. It won't tear, shrink, or stretch. High heats can cause permanent wrinkles, but under normal conditions it resists wrinkling. It can be dry cleaned, machine washed, and bleached without damage.

Unfortunately, nylon is not perfect. It's hot in summer and cold in winter. Balls form on the surface of the fabric and are hard to remove. It yellows and weakens in sunlight. Anti-perspiration deodorants cause deterioration of the fiber.

Nylon grays because of static electricity attracting dust and holding it to the fabric.

One property of nylon that has earned it a nickname is its characteristic of picking up dyes from other fabrics. It is sometimes referred to as a scavenger for color. Stains can be hard to remove.

Many companies produce nylon and, therefore, it has a long list of tradenames: Antron, Eskalon, Cantreze, Nylon, Caprolan, Qiana, Cumulox, Algilon, Helanca, Flutlon, Banlon, Unel, Cedilla, Nomex, Blanc de Blancs, Rilsan and Rilston.

Nylon is not just one fiber. Because it can be used as tires and as sheer hosiery, it is made of different compounds or polymers and by various techniques to produce the desired characteristics. Therefore, not all the trade names above are the same. In other words, Cantreze, for example, makes excellent hosiery, but I wouldn't want to wear a pair of stockings made of Banlon.

The trade names are useful in identifying nylon fabrics from other synthetic fabrics.

'Sty of Blind Pig' to be presented at SIUE

"The Sty of the Blind Pig" by black playwright Phillip Hayes Dean will be presented July 20, 21, 26, 27 and 28 at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. in the Communications Building theater.

Directed by Madeline Egerton, an SIUE graduate student living in Spanish Lake, Mo., the play is set in Chicago in 1966 at the beginning of the Civil Rights movement. The four characters in the play were born in the south. They had gone to Chicago looking for a better life but wound up in a ghetto. Weedy, the possessive mother, portrayed by Olivia Laird of Edwardsville, tries desperately to hold on to what she has—her daughter Alberta. A fiercely religious person, Weedy takes pleasure only in her church and the yearly convocation in Memphis, which gives her an excuse to return to the south.

Alberta, portrayed by Francesa Roberts, Edwardsville, knows only work. A domestic, her loyalties are to her mother and her employers and their two children. She has never known a man. Then she meets Blind Jordan, portrayed by Rudy Wilson, Edwardsville. Alberta is first attracted to Jordan because she thinks she can help him. Later she takes him as a lover but is repelled when she finds he was born in a house of ill fame, which inspired the playwright's title of the play.

The fourth character in the play is Weedy's brother, Doc, portrayed by Elester Laibam. St. Louis, Doc is a sport, looked up to when he lived in the south because he had money. In Chicago he winds up a shoe shine boy but concentrates on playing the numbers game so he can earn enough money to return to the south. Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for SIUE students.

FIRST LADY OF JAZZ, Ella Fitzgerald, who will be featured at the Mississippi River Festival at 8:30 p.m. Friday. She has starred in all phases of entertainment from night club dates to concert hall performances to television appearances and specials and has cut more than 100 albums.

Venice Park levy up

A $7,783 tax levy approved by the Venice Park Board represents an increase of $1,885 over the previous year's levy of $5,898.

The new levy includes $38,813 for general fund purposes, a decrease from $39,878 last year. The 1972-73 budget included the cost of an election which is not necessary this year.

The new levy for recreational purposes was approved at $30,850, up from the $30,370 in the previous levy.

The Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund levy was set at $6,500, a 62 1/2 per cent increase over the $4,000 levied the previous year.

The levy for the annual audit of the park district books remained at $250, the same as last year, and the levy for liability insurance remained unchanged at $1,400.

Debra Ann Wilson bride of Robert E. Vincent

Miss Debra Ann Wilson, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen R. Wilson, 15 Victoria Drive, and Robert E. Vincent, 3801 Lake Drive, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Vincent, 153 Troy Road, Collinsville, exchanged wedding vows at 7 p.m. on June 30 at the Emanuel Baptist Church, 1800 Pontoon Road.

The Rev. Arthur J. Short officiated at the double-ring ceremony before an altar lighted by branch candelabra festooned with white satin ribbons and greenery.

Miss Linda Bennett, soloist, sang "Sunrise Sunset," "A Tune For Us" and "One Heart," accompanied by Miss Vickie Whitehead, organist.

The former Miss Wilson chose a gown of white Chantilly lace over organza designed with a fitted bodice featuring a high neckline and long tapered sleeves.

Fashioned with a natural waistline the skirt was slightly gathered at the sides and back and created of tiers of lace ruffles that fell gently into a chapel train.

She wore a Juliet cap of matching lace etched in pearls to hold in place her floor-length veil of bridal illusion trimmed with a band of lace. The bridal bouquet was a cascade of white carnations and red roses, accented with red and white streamers.

Maid of honor was Miss Kathy Wilson, a sister of the bride. The bridesmaids included Misses Barbara King, Pat Wasser and Mary Jane Griffith. Miss Cindy Wilson, another sister of the bride, served as the junior bridesmaid. They wore gowns of dacron and polyester organza over taffeta in a rainbow of colors of yellow, blue, pink, orchid and green.

The front of the bodices were fashioned with a bib effect marked with Venise lace flowers in multicolors that was repeated on the cuffs of the long sleeves and high neckline. Each attendant wore a picture hat with wide satin bands in shades to match their gown and carried nosegays of pink carnations.

Al Vincent, a brother of the groom, was the ringbearer and escorted the little flower girl, Tammy Hahn, a cousin of the groom. She wore a pink frock styled to match the adult attendants and a picture hat with long streamers. Her small nosegay was also pink carnations.

Alan Rinehart attended the groom as best man. Mike Kempf, Eddie Sadler, Don Webb and Danny Wilson, the bride's brother, were groomsmen. Seating the guests were Glen Wilson and Don Vincent, brothers of the bride and groom.

The newly married couple greeted guests at a reception at the Long Lake Fire Hall.

They are now residing at 3801 Lake Drive following a trip. Both are graduates of Collinsville High School. The bride is employed at Key Retail Drugs and her husband works at St. Louis Envelope Co. He attended Belleville Area College.

Honored at shower

Miss Pamela Kessler was honored with a bridal shower this week, given by Mrs. Vivienne Dancos, Mrs. Beulah Hays and Mrs. Connie Woodward at the home of Mrs. Richard Matthews, 70 Riviere Drive. The room was appropriately decorated with floral arrangements and wedding bells. The buffet table was adorned with a floral centerpiece.

Games were played and gifts opened by the honoree. Refreshments were served to Mesdames Demova Beasley, Ethel Stallings, R. B. Davis, Beverly Horn, Helen Bergfield, Virginia Larsen, Barbara Gagich and daughters, Gayle and Karen, Lana Rogier.

To attend workshop on shows

Members of the Sweet Adelines vocal group, which includes several Quad-Cityans, will attend a regional meeting in Decatur, Ill., Friday and Saturday.

A workshop on shows will be given by the Gatesburg Chapter, and Doris Sanford and Helen Groh, of the Collinsville Chapter, will co-chair a workshop on social committees. Terry Studebaker of the Collinsville chapter has joined the Tete Chords of Kirkwood, who placed second in Sweet Adelines competition held in May. That group will entertain at the Decatur meeting. Others who will represent the Collinsville Chapter are Donna Eason, Helen Groh, Catherine Hecht, Judy Holtzsch, Bonnie Kalika, Doris Sanford, Jean Schuller, Jean Schobert, Elaine Shipcoff, Wanda Spivey, Evelyn Stack and June Sweet.

SUMMER BRIDE, Mrs. Don Alan Schlechte, the former Miss Jennifer Diane Snider, a daughter of the Rev. and Wilbert V. Snider of Salem, Mo., formerly of Granite City. She was married at the Southwest Baptist Church in St. Louis.

Jennifer Snider wed in candlelight ceremony

An out-of-town wedding of interest to local residents was that of Miss Jennifer Diane Snider, Salem Mo., and Don Alan Schlechte, who were married at the Southwest Baptist Church, St. Louis, on July 17.

Miss Snider's parents are the Rev. and Mrs. Wilbert V. Snider, Salem, Mo., and the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Schlechte, reside in St. Louis.

The Rev. Snider officiated at the double-ring candlelight ceremony at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Mrs. Mildred Hewitt, organist, accompanied Mrs. Jackie Holder as she sang "Through the Years," "Wedding Prayer," and "Sweet, Sweet Spirit."

For her wedding, the bride chose a Victorian gown of ivory satin and illusion net with appliques of re-embroidered Alencon lace. The molded-bodice was fashioned with a stand-up collar of lace and the long sleeves were banded with wide satin cuffs matching the rolled satin hemline of her gown.

She wore a floor-length mantilla veil of illusion net edged with Alencon lace and carried an arrangement of white and yellow roses entwined with baby breath and greenery.

Mrs. Mike Barry, Cape Girardeau, Ill., cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Chris Sutton, and Miss Vicki Armstrong, both of Salem, Miss Jan Herring and Miss Debby Schlechte, sister of the groom, of St. Louis. Dana Fiebelman was flower girl and D. J. Schlechte, brother of the groom, served as ring bearer.

The flower girl and adult attendants wore identical gowns of floral print of ivory, pink, green and yellow. Their gowns were fashioned with flowing skirts and fitted bodices designed with high neckline, and sheer long sleeves. Each carried a bouquet of yellow daisies.

Dave Schlechte, brother of the groom served as best man. Ron Becker, St. Louis, brother-in-law of the groom, Dave Kroeter, of Peoria, Ill., Curt Wegener of Belleville and Doug Schlechte, another brother of the groom, Ron Schlechte, cousin of the groom, and Steve Brown completed the corps of groomsmen and ushers.

A rehearsal dinner was held at the Heritage House. A buffet dinner was served in the fellowship hall of the church, after the service.

The bride is a graduate of Granite City High School and of the University of Missouri at St. Louis. She now is enrolled at the University of Missouri, St. Louis.

Mr. Schlechte is a graduate of Lutheran High School-North, and of the University of Missouri at St. Louis. He is a mechanical engineer employed at Union Electric Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Schlechte are residing in St. Louis.

Club plans home tour

The third annual Home Tour planned and sponsored by the Granite City Junior Service Club to raise funds for various civic projects was discussed at a meeting of the club in the home of Mrs. Beverly King, 44 Glendale Drive, Glen Carbon.

Mrs. Marce Penneil has arranged for several homes to be shown to the public and will announce the owners' names and addresses when the list is completed for the Sept. 4 tour.

Serving as co-chairmen of the event are Mrs. Loretha Krebs and Mrs. Linda Sattich, with Mrs. Carol Triff, acting in charge of ticket sales. Tickets may be purchased from any member of the service club.

Autumn wedding plans

The engagement of Miss Rhonda S. Hoffman and Airman First Class Craig A. Faxon was announced at a family party given in the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon L. Faxon, 4674 South Broadway, St. Louis.

Miss Hoffman, who resides in St. Louis, is a daughter of Mrs. Thomas Williams of Granite City and Bert Hoffman of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. She was graduated from Granite City High School in 1972 and now is employed as a secretary.

The prospective bridegroom is a graduate of Lindbergh High School and now is serving with the U. S. Air Force at Forbes AFB in Topeka, Kan.

They are planning to be married Sept. 1 at South Side Church of Christ, St. Louis.

Tests show low auto air pollution

By JOAN MURARO
Copley News Service
Springfield—Preliminary air sampling of locations with high auto concentrations has failed to turn up any dangerous levels of air pollution, according to the division of air pollution control of the Environmental Protection Agency.

The division recently conducted day-long samplings at a Springfield shopping center, and at Calumet City, Hillside and Arlington Heights in the Chicago area.

Jack G. Coblenz, manager of the technical services section of the air pollution control division, said the testing was designed to collect background information which will be used in setting up regulations for future construction of sites where such concentrations are likely to occur—shopping centers, sports arenas, entertainment parks and the like.

The U. S. EPA, acting on a federal court order, is requiring state agencies to submit proposals for such future controls on location and design for these complex sources to guarantee that they do not create pollution levels which violate national standards.

Mobile units tested for carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxide in the ambient air. Results will be used in drafting a proposal. The draft is now being prepared in conjunction with an advisory group made up of representatives of both environmental interest groups and those sections of the economy likely to be directly or indirectly affected by the controls—real estate developers, consulting engineers, municipal officials and urban planners, among others.

The Springfield check was the first test conducted in the series, and results were well below allowable federal standards, according to Jack Marco, acting director of the state EPA.

Federal primary standards for carbon monoxide, Coblenz said, permit a maximum average of 35 parts of the pollutant in a million parts of ambient air in a one hour period, and an average maximum of nine parts per million over an eight hour period.

At the Town and Country shopping center in Springfield, the top one-hour average was eight parts per million, and the highest eight hour average was less than five parts per million. Readings vary according to weather, Coblenz said. Higher readings would be expected in stagnant air periods during cold weather, or at a peak shopping period in the Christmas season, or might be lower on windy days. Where possible, the tests will be repeated at the same sites in cold weather, an EPA spokesman said.

In the Chicago area samplings, two shopping centers and the Arlington Park raceway were used as test sites. Had results been dangerously high, additional samplings had tentatively been scheduled for other downstate locations, such as Rockford, Quad Cities, Peoria, Bloomington-Normal, Champaign-Urbana, Decatur, East St. Louis and possibly other cities. However, the lack of dangerous concentrations appears to have removed the need for such additional tests, Coblenz said.

The sampling results will be available for use in hearings on the proposed regulations by the Pollution Control Board later this summer.

Bicentennial grants available

The Illinois Bicentennial Commission will make available $40,000 in matching grant funds to assist Illinois communities and organizations in funding local American Revolution Bicentennial projects, Chairman Samuel A. Lilly has announced.

Only projects of Illinois communities and non-profit organizations which are officially recognized by the commission will be eligible to receive a portion of the $40,000, Lilly said. Applications from such groups will be reviewed and voted on by the commission.

All request must be received no later than Aug. 31. The $40,000 is Illinois' share of $2.1 million in non-appropriated revenues allocated to states and territories by the national American Revolution Bicentennial Commission from the sale of official 1972 Bicentennial commemorative medals and stamp-medal combinations.

In order to qualify for a grant, a project must follow these guidelines:
—fall within one or more of the three basic Bicentennial themes: Heritage '76, Festival and Horizons '76.
—be sponsored by an official community or organization Bicentennial committee or commission.
—be operational or completed during or before 1976.
—have some residual value to the community, when appropriate.

Meet on transit service tonight

The Office of Mass Transportation of the Illinois Department of Transportation has scheduled an open meeting to hear recommendations on Bi-State Transit System bus service improvements in this area from 6:30 to 9 tonight in the Court Chambers of the East St. Louis City Hall, No. 7 Collinsville Ave.

The meeting was announced in Chicago by the Office of Mass Transportation. Through this meeting the Office of Mass Transportation hopes to gain a better idea of the service improvements which are desirable and necessary in the local area. All wishing to make recommendations on improving the quality of bus service are invited to attend and express their views.

Oral or written statements should deal as specifically as possible with concrete recommendations, such as:
—frequency of service;
—type of service (express, local, shoppers, etc.);
—days and hours of service;
—routing of lines; or —equipment used.

Live-saving classes set

The Granite City Park District will conduct life-saving classes at the Wilson Park swimming pool for two weeks from 9 to 11 a.m. Mondays through Fridays beginning Monday.

Junior classes will be for youths of 11 to 15 and senior classes will be for those 15 and up. In addition a water safety instructor course will be conducted at the same time for youths 17 and up.

The instructor will be Dave Nolan, assisted by Joe Papes. Youths interested may register in advance at the pool office.

Mrs. Wyatt dies at 85

Mrs. Nancy Alma (Rainwater) Wyatt, 85, of 3415 Adams St., ill for several years, died at 4:30 a.m. Tuesday at the Blu Fountain Nursing Home in Godfrey, Ill. She had been a patient there three years.

Born in Dover, Tenn., she lived in the Quad-Cities 47 years and was a member of the Pentecostal faith.

Her husband, Irving Wyatt, died July 26, 1969. Survivors include five daughters, Mrs. Earline Frame and Mrs. Norma Henken, both of Granite City. Mrs. Maxine Fuller of Cabool, Mo., Mrs. Jean Latvala of Denver, Colo., and Mrs. Ruth Potter of McMinnville, Tenn.; two sons, Clayton Wyatt of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Lee M. Wyatt of Los Angeles, Calif.

Three sisters, Mrs. Manie Hickman and Mrs. Bertha Voss, both of Granite City, and Mrs. Sallie Sexton of Tennessee Ridge, Tenn.; two brothers, Lurton Rainwater of Oak Park, Ill., and Walter Rainwater of Tennessee Ridge, Tenn.; 30 grandchildren and 36 great-grandchildren.

Anti-abortion meeting planned

The Granite City Chapter of Right to Life, a group opposing liberalized abortion rulings, will hold a public meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Nameoki Village Shopping Center.

Guest speakers will include Mrs. Felicia Goeken, executive secretary of the Right to Life, Inc., Alton, and a doctor and attorney, also from Alton. They will answer all questions concerning moral, physical and legal implications of abortion.

Funeral services were held today. Details are given in the obituary column.

Mrs. Goeken, a nationally-known opponent of abortions, will present slides and film to support her contentions.

Members of the Granite City Right to Life this week expressed their gratitude for those who supported them in the weekend "March for Life."

About 40 marchers and 10 drivers participated in the activity. State Rep. Robert Walters (R-Alton) addressed the group at Nameoki Village Shopping Center and Mrs. Goeken spoke at the end of the march at Civic Park.

Special thanks were offered for those who could not join the march but who supported the marchers with prayers and deeds, a spokeswoman said.

VOTE DENIED

On May 26, 1987, Parliament in London rejected John Stuart Mills' bill to permit women to vote.

Livestock feedlots studied

An agriculture advisory committee is continuing its consideration of possible pollution control regulations to govern livestock feedlots in Illinois.

The next meeting of the committee is scheduled for July 24 in Bloomington, according to Gilbert Fricke, a Petersburg farmer and chairman of the committee.

Members of the committee include representatives of livestock producer organizations, environmental groups and citizen organizations.

The committee was organized by the Institute for Environmental Quality after the Illinois Pollution Control Board tabled proposed animal waste regulations last spring at the request of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency.

"The agricultural community realizes that the federal government will be setting

Granite City Press-Record
Thurs., July 19, 1973 Page 19

nation-wide regulations governing feedlots this fall."

Fricke said. The purpose of the committee, Fricke added, is to propose fair and workable state regulations to the Illinois Pollution Control Board.

"Farmers and consumers in Illinois want to be sure we maintain a viable livestock industry while improving our environment, and I hope our committee's proposal will make such fair pollution control possible," Fricke said.

At the most recent meeting of the advisory committee, Leonard Gardner, representing the Illinois Agricultural Association, noted that any proposed animal waste regulations should take into account both the current economic situation of Illinois farmers and the food needs of urban citizens.

"We must remember," Gardner said, "that the Illinois farmer must make a profit and at the same time, feed our urban neighbors. We want to make pollution control possible for the farmer and livestock producer."

"I am confident," he said, "that farmers can control agriculture-related pollution and still make a fair profit."

Flood aid available

Congressman Melvin Price, Dem., 23rd Illinois, has announced that persons whose flood-damaged homes are on land leased from the federal government are eligible for disaster assistance from the Small Business Administration.

Previously, many leasing from the government had been denied assistance because of a "hold harmless" clause in their leases. This clause purported to absolve the government from any liability for damage from flooding.

Following discussions with Congressman Price on the matter, SBA officials announced that the clause applies only to non-natural flooding such as that caused by the opening of a dam. Persons whose homes were damaged by recent natural flooding are not bound by the clause and are therefore eligible for assistance.

"Affected persons who have already submitted applications to SBA will automatically be reconsidered for assistance," Price advised. "Those who have not yet done so should submit applications to the SBA office in Springfield."

Blood drive ends today

A Quad-City area four-day drive for blood contributions will conclude today with contributions taken at St. Mary's Church, 1821 Tenth St., Madison, from 2 to 6:45 p.m.

The Church Women United organized the mid-summer drive to meet a need for whole blood and to assist participating church members in securing blood when it is necessary.

Mrs. Stephen Gargac served as chairman of the local drive. Fourteen area churches took part in the program.

The Red Cross blood-mobile began accepting blood donations on Monday at St. Margaret Mary Church, 1900 St. Clair Ave., and continued the project on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Superintendent of reformatory named

Illinois Department of Corrections Director Allyn R. Sielaff has announced the appointment of Robert A. Buchanan, 37, now supervisor of the agency's Southern Illinois Work Release Center in Carbondale, as superintendent of the State Reformatory for Women, Dwight, effective Aug. 1.

He succeeds Mrs. Margaret Morrissey, now of Joliet, who retired Feb. 28 after a 24-year career in corrections.

BURGLAR TAKES PURSE Aileen Phillips, 2132 Grand Ave., reported that while she was sitting on her front porch between 9:30 and 10 p.m. Monday, someone entered the house through a rear window and took her purse, which was found outside with the contents scattered. Missing was an undetermined amount of money and a personal checkbook.

Judy Trindle becomes Mrs. Donald H. Baker

Miss Judy Lynn Trindle, a daughter of William Trindle, 2008 Twelfth St., and Donald Herbert Baker, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Baker, 2259 Monroe Ave., exchanged wedding vows in an early evening ceremony on July 7 at the Tri-City American Legion Post 113 Home, 1825 State St.

The Rev. George Johnson of St. Louis performed the service at 7 o'clock.

For her wedding the bride selected a full-length gown fashioned of white organza over tulle with a fitted bodice created of intricately designed Venise lace featuring a Sabrina neckline.

Matching lace formed a capped effect and cuffs for the long sheer lantern-style sleeves, and edged the hemline of the slightly gathered skirt.

She wore a mantilla veil of bridal illusion trimmed with a wide scalloped band of lace and held a bouquet of carnations and baby breath.

Maid of honor Miss Diane Davis and bridesmaids Miss Felicia Trindle and Mrs. Michael Dunnivant, both sisters of the bride, were gown in identical dresses.

They were made of a floral print in orchid, lilac, pink, yellow and green on a white background and designed with molded bodices featuring scooped necklines edged with an orchid lace. An orchid velvet ribbon defined the natural waistlines and terminated in the back with a small bow and long streamers.

Each girl wore a white spun-straw picture hat accented with orchid velvet bands.

Lynda and Wendy Baker, daughters of the groom, and Dina Doolin, a niece of the groom, served as flower girls. They were dressed in pale pink chiffon over tulle frocks with short puff sleeves, high necklines and high-rise waistlines enhanced with white and pink daisy trim.

They wore pink bows in their hair and carried white baskets filled with pink petals.

The groom chose Gerald Goodwin as his best man, Michael Dunnivant and Richard Trindle, a brother of the bride, served as groomsmen.

Guests were received by the newly married couple at a

Briarcliff church burns mortgage

Briarcliff Pentecostal Church, 1180 West Pontoon Road, held special worship services at the church this week as part of a mortgage-burning ceremony for the church and two adjoining lots that now are paid in full under the leadership of the pastor, the Rev. Ross Smith.

The present building was opened for the first time in September 1967. Prior to that time the congregation had met since 1947 in a basement church at 25th street and Dewey avenue.

The founding pastor, the Rev. Mack Haynes and his wife, Blanche, served the church for 13 years before retiring and moving to Florida.

In the morning service, the guest speaker was the Rev. Wayne Miller of Evanston, Ill. The Rev. Haynes of Largo, Fla. presented an afternoon service. Rev. Robert Daniel of Arkansas spoke at the evening services.

The Rev. Smith and his wife, Eva, have served the church for the past 12 years.

Mr. Wade, who is 80, has traveled extensively and is enroute to LaCrosse, Wis., where he plans to visit with his grandchild whom he has not seen in several years.

The two families became friends 10 years ago when Mrs. Podoba and her son Neal, assisted the Wade's when they were stranded on a highway near Granite City with an empty gasoline tank.

Bethel plans parties

Members of Bethel 42, Order of Job's Daughters, will attend a swimming party at 6 p.m. today at the home of Miss Joy Pope, senior princess, and on Friday evening will attend a teen night ball game, it was announced by Lori Houser, honored queen, at a meeting of the Bethel at the Masonic Temple.

Anita Pruitt gave the librarian's report on the topic, "Friendship." A report also was submitted on a car wash program.

Escorted and introduced during the meeting were Mrs. Rebecca Slate, guardian elect; Dr. Ames Rode, associate guardian; Leslie Houser, grand representative to Delaware in Illinois; Debbie Trekey, honorary state officer guard; and Mr. and Mrs. John Simpson, worthy matron and worthy patron of New Hope Chapter 42.

Mr. and Mrs. Simpson presented the Bethel with checks on behalf of New Hope Chapter.

The altar was draped for the meeting in memory of the late Otto Grooms who was a past associate guardian of Bethel 42.

Miss Houser announced the next meeting will be "Foggy survey" night when chairmen of committees take the officers station.

Delay of doctoral degree program would be false economy

Fund requests approved this month by the Southern Illinois University board for the July 1974-August 1975 year include $125,000 for cooperative doctoral degree programs of the SIUE campus.

The trustees last November authorized such programs in principle, in conjunction with SIUE, Washington University and St. Louis University.

The November 1972 action was taken after the three institutions had expressed willingness to provide instructional services under contract with one another to supplement faculty resources already existing within each university.

Although discussions with Washington and St. Louis universities are continuing, no actual cooperative doctoral instruction has begun. This is unfortunate because the plan offers distinct benefits and economies to the three schools, their students and the public.

The funds now being requested for fiscal 1974-75 would provide student assistance funds and tuition compensation for the participating universities. It would be a false saving if the proposal falls victim to state "cost-cutters."

Fifth River Festival concert season off to a good start; likely to be the best, both artistically and financially

Birthday parties are happy occasions, and the fifth anniversary celebration opening the 1973 Mississippi River Festival was no exception. It was enjoyed by a gathering of 3,875.

Magicians, clowns, folk singers, drill teams, drum and bugle corps, puppeteers, dancers, vocalists and musical groups helped entertain at the party, which also featured serving of a large birthday cake decorated to portray the MRF site on the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville campus.

The 96-member St. Louis Symphony Orchestra was in excellent form for the initial concert, reacting skillfully to the baton of Conductor Walter Susskind. Lilit Gampel, 13-year-old guest artist, won a standing ovation for her participation with the orchestra in "Symphonie Espagnole" for Violin and Orchestra, Opus 21.

Cannon fire highlighted the Symphony's final selection, "Overture 1812, Opus 48," and fireworks display ended the evening, the first of many musical nights which will unfold during July and August at the tent-and-hillside arena.

Hearty thanks are due the many involved in planning the River Festival's fifth summer concert season, which may well be the most successful—both at the box office and in the quality of the musical programs. Officers and directors include Nicholas P. Voeder, Randall Robertson, C. E. Townsend, Ernest A. Karandjoff, Harold R. Fischer, Dr. John S. Rendleman, Paul Simon, Russell C. Solomon Jr., Dr. Albert W. Triant, Senator Sam Vadalabene, Dr. Ramon N. Williamson, Albert Cassens and Alan J. Dixon.

Monopsony creeps into government

By FRANK MACOMBER
Copy News Service

Monopsony, the domination of a market by a single seller, became a bad word back in the days when President Theodore Roosevelt "busted the trusts" of American business.

Today monopsony, the domination of a market by a single buyer, has become just as distasteful a word. But this time it's the aerospace and defense industries, not the Justice Department, which want to get rid of the system which fosters monopsony.

The Aerospace Industries Association, which represents major producers of the nation's aircraft, spacecraft, missiles and rockets, has called on Congress to establish a board to monitor and limit government's monopsony power just as the Justice Department's Antitrust Division controls the use of industry's monopoly power.

The AIA's suggestion was based on a study by the Ordnance Corp. exploring the monopolistic character of the government as a buyer of goods and services.

The study, commissioned by AIA, warns that the problems created by a single customer no longer are restricted to defense and aerospace suppliers. Other government agencies besides the Pentagon and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration are assuming increasingly active roles in such areas as mass transit, education, health and environmental protection, it points out.

The result is confusion, cost-overruns and often general dissatisfaction on both sides of the fence—the government as buyer and industry as seller.

The significance of this trend, the study says, is federal government purchases are nearly 10 per cent of the gross national product. They have grown rapidly, the annual increase in expenditures over the last decade being nearly 3 per cent.

The study expresses fear that "the procurement approach employed by the government in the defense and space markets is, despite the failures experienced, becoming the prototype for system-type procurements throughout the federal government."

It points out that "one of the unique and distressing aspects of the process by which government acquires major systems is that too often all of the parties involved are unhappy with the results."

Congressional and executive agency spokesmen frequently cite examples of schedule slippages, technical failure and cost overruns. Industry in turn points to changing requirements, excessive regulation, inequitable procurement practices and unacceptably low prices.

A confused public, generally unsophisticated on the subject, is likely to conclude that government officials and private industry are misallocating and mismanaging scarce public resources.

The government's monopsony power, the report charges, means higher final costs and lower or nonexistent profits that make it difficult for industry to attract new capital.

"What is in jeopardy," the study warns, "is not one or two industries but rather our capability, as a nation, to undertake programs in which the resources of government and industry must be committed to the solving of society's problems."

THE HOBBLING OF SUPERBEAN

Perplexing food paradox—controls hindering agriculture

The U.S. decision to curtail exports of soybeans and other foods to prevent shortages of meat in the United States of America has done much damage.

Abroad, the reaction to the curtailment was severe, particularly in the Orient where soybeans constitute a critical element in human as well as in animal diets. Japan, for example, imports 98 per cent of its soybeans from the United States; the Republic of China more than 90 per cent. The United States is the only significant source of supply that is available to either.

In Europe where soybeans also form an essential part of human and animal diets, officials asked how the United States could expect the Common Market to liberalize its trade restrictions on foreign agricultural products when America slaps restrictions on its own commodity exports. It is an embarrassing question.

Other anomalies of the so-called "soybean shock" readily come to mind. Agriculture as such is the remaining bright spot in U.S. foreign trade. Restrictions on soybeans, corn, feed grains and oil-producing vegetables can only aggravate our balance of payments problem.

Another thought, difficult to accept, is that the United States, the most advanced scientific, technological and industrial society the world has known is becoming the world's granary, a role usually reserved for underdeveloped nations. The United States is, for example, sending wheat to the Soviet Union, rice to Southeast Asia and soybeans to Japan and China. Such reliance on our capability has been created that limitations of our exports to fill domestic needs raises increasing diplomatic problems.

However, perhaps the greatest paradox of all is right here at home. The United States has no lack of arable land, fertility or water. We can grow enough soybeans to feed the world. Indeed, millions of acres of land are fallow, even as we worry about shortages. Yet, farmers are reluctant to cultivate their idle land because government policies may result in a lack of markets for their product, processors and wholesalers are going out of business for lack of supply and housewives are being warned that their grocery stores may be short of eggs, chicken and beef by fall.

The reasons for the paradox are many and complex, but one stands out above all of the others. The visible law of diminishing soybeans is that the deeper the government gets into the problem, the worse it becomes.

New state aid formula big lift for Quad-City schools

A truly significant shift in state public school financing procedures has occurred.

The net result will be a much higher percentage of Quad-City school expenditures being borne by the state.

The main impact will not be felt immediately, since the change will be gradually implemented during the next four years.

The change in favor of school systems with relatively low assessed valuation-per-student has received little attention since the close of the 1973 General Assembly session early in July partly because it was part of the huge stack of legislation enacted during the hectic final days.

Among those impressed by the new legislation, perhaps the most vocal was in St. Louis. Bob J. Davis of Granite City Community School District No. 18 summarized the spring session as follows:

"The state legislature has now adjourned. In the area of public education, I feel we have seen some exceptional legislation enacted."

"The three major bills that we have worked toward that passed were:

"H.R. 1484—This provides for the largest school aid formula in the nation. It answers many of the questions of equality in funding that were raised in the Sorrento and Rodriguez cases."

"Basically, this establishes a Guaranteed Assessment Per Pupil (GAPP) which provides $1.30 per pupil when multiplied by the required tax rate. This would require a unit district to levy a total operating rate of $3.00, or $2.00 for elementary districts and $1.00 for high school districts. This includes all funds except bond and interest, rent, transportation, special education building, capital improvements and vocational training."

"The GAPP for units is $22,000 for elementary, $24,000 for high school and $26,000 for high school districts. Granite City has approximately $15,000 per pupil at present."

"It is estimated that in four years the state will be providing 51 per cent of the common school financing. This is a very significant piece of legislation. H.R. 601—Establishes a 17-member State Board of Education appointed by the governor, with advice and consent of the Senate. This must be done by the governor by Jan. 1, 1975.

"The board is long needed and should be a step toward improvement in the public schools."

"H.R. 585—Appropriates $60,000,000 to the Illinois Department of Local Governments for distribution to local government taxing bodies to help relieve revenue loss through the discontinuation of personal property taxes."

"The following bills did not pass:

"H.R. 911—Two-year freeze on local property taxes (referred to a joint conference committee).

"H.R. 52—Establish a hearing officer for tenure dismissal (referred to a joint conference committee).

"H.R. bargaining bills (assigned to a Senate committee).

The school aid legislation was signed Monday by Governor Daniel Walker.

The governor's remarks at the signing ceremony included:

"Almost one-third of the state budget is devoted to education. I am signing bills appropriating money for distribution to local government for education next year."

"The total for elementary and secondary education statewide is $1.2 billion, including $28 million for Chicago, up $27 million."

"The new school aid formula and increases in other programs will benefit both suburbs and cities."

State budgeted funds for elementary and secondary education are up 12.5 per cent, or more than $14 million. This rise is viewed as the largest ever in Illinois without an accompanying tax increase.

The governor's office estimated that Madison County's state education aid will increase by $2,734,000 to a total of $27,361,000.

In four years, the annual state aid figure for Granite City District Nine alone may reach $1 million. The district's increase for next year is estimated by the state at $204,300.

Berlin Wall makes hypocrisy of detente

By JOHN FINKERMAN
Editor, Copy News Service

A few days ago in the United Nations, Horst Gruener, East Germany's permanent observer, said that the infamous Berlin Wall might come down some day.

Big deal. What this callous man was saying was that after nearly 12 years of the most inhuman kind of mass captivity the people of East Berlin might once again freely visit relatives and friends on the more prosperous western side of the divided city.

Gruener typified the Communist philosophy that caused the Schandmauer (Wall of Shame) to be built on Aug. 13, 1961, when he answered a newspaper's question about the recent shooting of an East Berliner who sought to flee to freedom on the other side of the Wall.

His response had a chilling effect on all those present. "I didn't speak with anyone who tried to leave our republic by violating the laws," he said, "so I don't know the intentions of these people. Maybe they were influenced by some of the mass media to believe that life in the so-called Western countries is more easy."

In other words, according to Gruener, no shooting will go on. And, yes, is the global philosophy with which we are tablishing what is called a "detente."

As in most detentes with the Reds, this is a one-sided deal. Willy Brandt calls it Ostpolitik and it permits West Berliners to visit the east side of the city a total of 30 days a year.

President Nixon, too, has established a dialogue with Soviet Communism and I suppose that is a good thing, but it doesn't change the Communists' cruel approach to human relations.

The East Berliner, for instance, is just as much a prisoner in his tiny enclave as he was when The Wall went up 12 years ago. His situation is part of a system that might be useful for many Americans who take freedom lightly.

These people, and many are my friends, often say, "Life under communism can't be too bad."

I am no flag-waving fanatic, but to those people I say, "Go to Berlin. If you don't understand the difference between our system of life and East Berlin communism after you have visited both sides of that great city, you'll never understand."

The history of The Wall tells much.

There was the first crude concrete block and barbed wire barrier, then tank traps, crude machine guns and guard posts and illumination the full length of a new and of old Berlin.

It is indeed a Wall of Shame and cruel, hypocritical remarks like Horst Gruener's cannot change that.

and an incident of Aug. 17, 1961, when a Soviet soldier's memory as the most striking example of Communist "detente."

Eighteen-year-old Peter Fechter on that day made a dash for freedom. He negotiated the minefield and tried to scale the 13-foot wall but was shot down by Red guards on the Soviet side of the city. Bleeding and dying, he cried out for help but the guards who had shot him ignored his pleas for over an hour as West Berliners shouted angry protests, held back from more violent action by their own "peace-keeping" police. Fechter died.

Today a crude wooden cross stands on the west side of The Wall at a point near where Fechter died. Fresh flowers are placed at the cross frequently and both West Berliners and tourists note the spot as one of the clearest examples of Communist brutality.

The Wall today is much more sophisticated than the original. It has a concrete barrier that will stay any number of years in use. The minefield is deadly. There are electrified fences, "death" areas where look-out posts can be spotted easily, look-out posts and illumination the full length of a new and of old Berlin.

It is indeed a Wall of Shame and cruel, hypocritical remarks like Horst Gruener's cannot change that.

UNKNOWN TRIO SAVED LIFE OF MOTORIST
To the Editor:

Only July 1, I was eastbound on State AID Route 38 returning home from Granite City. I had just crossed over Illinois Route 111, when I was blinded by lights from somewhere.

This caused me to believe that an oncoming vehicle was about to crash into my car. I turned to my left, feeling that this would avoid a head-on collision. Unavoidably, I lost control of my automobile, and crashed into an electrical pole in that area.

After the accident, there were two men and a woman who reportedly saw me, and came to my aid.

There were electrical wires hanging on my car which in itself was danger to those people enough. They removed me from my car and phoned for assistance.

I wish to try in some way to thank those people, although there is nothing I can say which can express my sincere gratitude.

Anytime anyone, anywhere tells you that people are not as good as they once were, please shut them out. It is better to have three very special and wonderful people. I hope that their compassion and true respect for humanity will be returned ten-fold in the years to come.

In all probability, I owe these people my life.

I would like them to know that, even though I do not know who they are or where they come from, I will never forget what they did and the personal risk they subjected themselves to. God Bless them.

Application to cross five highways between Madison and Mitchell was filed with the Illinois Commerce Commission at Springfield by the Alton & Southern Railroad.

Track construction, begun five years ago, has reached the Illinois Traction System rails completion of the line will give the Alton & Southern four new connections, completing its connections with all lines in the Illinois part of the metropolitan area.

It has reached the $200 mark, it was learned from Acting Police Chief Joseph Kestel.

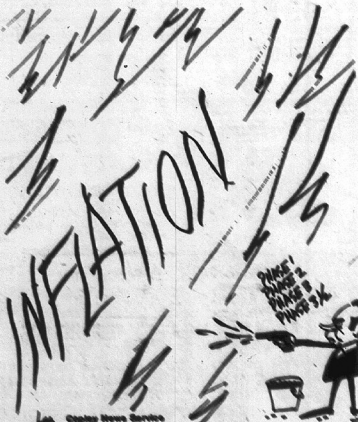

Police Chief Eugene R. Burnett, who started the club, said that $1,000 is needed for the fence.

Police Chief Eugene R. Burnett, who started the club, said that $1,000 is needed for the fence.

'Farmers Hotline' number listed

The Illinois Department of Agriculture's "Farmers Hotline" telephone number, 217-335-2444, should now be used exclusively for questions relating to the fuel shortage.

An additional number, 217-335-3588, should be used for questions other than those relating to the fuel shortage.

With establishment of the hotline in early April, the department initiated a program to provide quick and efficient attention to farmers' problems.

Director Robert J. "Bud" Williams said, "To date," he said, "the hotline has been instrumental in identifying a varied range of problems common to many members of the agricultural community."

"We did not, however, anticipate the magnitude of the fuel shortage and its effect on the agricultural community."

"For this reason I am establishing a separate hotline for the purpose of responding to all agricultural problems other than those relating to the fuel shortage."

Fire loss at Speedway

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the concession stand and damaged a road grader that was parked next to the stand at the Tri-City Speedway at 3:15 p.m. Sunday.

The Mitchell Fire Department had to cut a chain to gain entry as the speedway was closed.

Cause of the fire is unknown. The power to the stand was turned off.

According to firemen, damage to the road grader may be as high as $2,000. No estimate of damage to the stand and contents was made.

TAXI STRIKES SIGNAL

A Yellow Cab driven by Ferdinand J. Schmidt, 1728 Delmar Ave., knocked to the ground an Illinois Terminal Railroad warning signal in the 1300 block of Madison Avenue, Madison, at 3:30 p.m. Saturday. Schmidt was leaving a driveway where he had discharged a passenger, and made a left turn onto Madison Avenue.

FILING ACCIDENT REPORT at scene where William Leslie Keel, 54, of 2317 Ohio Ave., was run over by an auto on the parking lot of the Trust Bank at 1911 State St. last week is driver of the auto, Edwin W. Murphy, 2412 Lincoln Ave., who did not see the prostrate man in front of him. The officer is Patrolman Glen Wright.

Hit by intruder

Deon Echols, 19, of 509 Washington St., was charged with robbery and aggravated battery at 7:30 a.m. Saturday. Horace Wright, 1231 Bissell St., Venice, said he returned home at 1:15 a.m. Saturday and found six or seven people in his home. Entering the house, he yelled at them and the group knocked him down and fled, he related.

Taken from the home were $45 in cash, a radio valued at $50 and a camera valued at $60. It was reported. Wright was hospitalized.

A 17-year-old Venice youth also was arrested but charges later were dropped.

DECEPTION CHARGED

Larry Matysa, 31, of 1833 Maple Ave. was charged with deceptive practice on a complaint signed by Von De Cruse, who alleged he attempted to cash a forged check at Jacobsmeier's Tavern at 9:30 p.m. Friday.

RIVER DISCOVERED

Nameoki uses leash law

Nameoki Township residents with dogs as pets were reminded this week that the Madison County leash law is being enforced in the township. The law requires that dogs either be on a leash or confined within a fence.

"The township's rabies control officer will pick up all dogs running at large," Louis Whitsett, township supervisor, warned dog owners.

Disaster preparedness course offered by U. I.

"Your Chance to Live," a course in disaster preparedness, will be offered to elementary and secondary school children beginning this fall.

John Liggett, director of the University of Illinois Civil Defense Extension Division, said that the University Illinois Civil Defense Extension Division, said that the University of Illinois is responsible for administering the course as a part of a social studies curriculum to students in both public and private schools.

The course provides a workbook to help young people think and plan how to avoid or survive natural or man-made disasters, Liggett said.

Robert S. Ritz, deputy director of the Illinois Civil Defense Agency, emphasized the importance of the course. "For young people, disaster is a fact of life," he said, "more than 25,000 disasters strike the U. S. each year. That's more than 68 disasters every day. These catastrophes range from hurricanes and tornadoes, earthquakes with massive destruction, to train wrecks and neighborhood fires."

Liggett said that the University of Illinois, under contract with the National Office of Civil Defense, is responsible for establishing such training. It and the Civil Defense, have received special training at Federal Staff College, Battle Creek, Mich., to organize the project.

Educators may obtain further information from the University of Illinois, Civil Defense Extension Division, 117 Illinois Hall, Urbana.

AUTO SET ABLAZE

An unknown arsonist threw a plastic container with gasoline and lit a fuse underneath the auto of James Black, 2207 Rock Road, parked at the rear of his home at 11:15 p.m. Friday. The blaze was seen by Black's children and the fire was contained by firemen before major damage occurred.

Campers provide retreat for some busy legislators

By DIANE MOOD
Copley News Service

SPRINGFIELD — A growing number of Americans takes to the roads with campers each year. They find camping less expensive and more convenient than staying in hotels, especially with a family.

But a few Illinois legislators have discovered an additional way to make their campers say, "They live in them while the Legislature is in session."

Rep. Don Brummet, D-Vandalia, has owned a camper for four years, but this is the first year he has used it to live in during the session.

Brummet, whose one-unit camper is completely equipped with a kitchen, running water, electricity and gas, said he doesn't enjoy eating out all of the time, so the camper is a logical solution. The quiet (no telephone) of a campsite versus the bustle of a motel is also a strong attraction for Brummet.

He brought the camper to Springfield in mid-May, when the weather became drier. (The camper has a small heater and air conditioner.) He likes to sit outside when the weather is warm and enjoy the outdoors.

The representative, who plans to bring the camper down again next year, camps at the Illinois State Fairgrounds. The space, water and electrical hook-ups cost $40 per month.

Brummet has found another use for the camper. He uses it for campaigning and as a mobile office. This summer he plans a tour of the smaller towns in his district to talk to his constituents and help them with their problems.

"I'll invite them in, we'll put on a pot of coffee and talk," he said.

Brummet and his wife, Nina, originally bought the camper for traveling.

"Traveling is much more convenient in the camper," he said. "It is an entirely self-contained unit, so we can stop anywhere and sleep. It has power steering and brakes and you're sitting up high so you can see the highway better. I'd just as soon drive the camper as a car." His camper is on a one-ton Ford truck with dual tires.

Brummet said he is not an outdoorsman, so he chooses to camp in comfort. His one-unit camper sports paneled walls and blue upholstered furniture.

Sen. Jack Walker, R-Lansing, is another camping aficionado. He "got the bug" in 1969 when he and a friend and their sons bought a truck camper and drove to Alaska via the Alaska Highway. "I had been to Alaska three times before on the interstate cruise, but I saw more of the country in the camper than on the previous three trips," he said.

His camper, a Champion on an International chassis, is a self-contained single unit, with its own generator. It has power steering and brakes. He said his wife, Pearl, was not too enthusiastic about the camper at first, but has since "become a convert."

He lived in the camper in the springs of 1971 and 1972, but has not done so this year because of the wet weather and long hours the Senate has been working. "It's easier to walk a few blocks late at night than to drive all the way to Riverside," he said.

He prefers to camp at Riverside Park instead of the fairgrounds. "Camping at the fairgrounds is like camping in the parking lot of a motel. I like to hear the birds sing in the morning and see the trees." When the weather is good, he can step out of his camper and fish in the Sangamon River at Riverside.

"Springfield can be proud of Riverside Park," he said. "It is comparable to the best camping areas across the country."

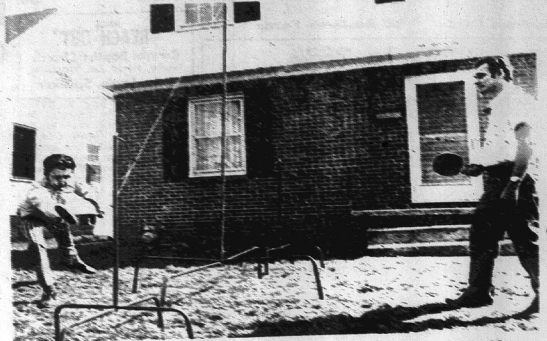

Like Brummet, Walker uses the camper as a mobile office and campaign headquarters. "When we are not in session, I park the camper in a shopping center and hand out literature and answer constituents' questions," he said.

The camper, which sleeps five adults comfortably, serves another purpose. It permits persons to take the camper for full excursions to see the Chicago Bears or the University of Illinois football games.

Rep. Gale Schisler, D-London Mills, uses his camper primarily as an escape from the glad-handing, back-slapping Springfield political life. He said he feels camper life provides him with the privacy not available in a motel room.

This is the third year he has lived in his camper during the session, and his second year at the fairgrounds. "The people who run the fairgrounds offered to install a phone for me this year, but I said no," he laughed. Like Brummet, Schisler feels the lack of a telephone is a major asset to camping.

He prefers camping over life in a motel room. "It's easier to have peace and quiet. There aren't any people going by late in the evening or early in the morning to dis-

GAME BLEND—Loop-O-Tennis, the new game invented by the Kelly brothers John and Paul, blends fast action with finesse and accomplishes one of the purposes the Kellys had in mind when they devised it. The kids won't have to leave the yard.

New game keeps kids at home

By CHRIS DETTBO
Copley News Service

SPRINGFIELD — You and your brother are partners in a company that makes two-wheeled industrial carts and you've got seven kids who want to play in the yard instead of in the street. What do you do?

If you're Springfield's Paul and John Kelly, you invent a game, call it Loop-O-Tennis and start manufacturing it at your plant. The kids are in the yard and you make some cash besides.

Loop-O-Tennis is a bunch of steel tubing, a rubber ball, eight feet of nylon cord and two sturdy Ping-Pong paddles. But according to Paul Kelly, the one with seven kids, his youngsters and the neighborhood youngsters play the game — in the yard — from the time they get home from school until dark.

That's one reason the brothers created the game. Another was that they wanted to add another product, a game, to the two-wheeled industrial carts they make at Kelco Manufacturing Co. in Springfield.

They intend to market the game, and so far the response has been "tremendous," according to John Kelly. "We haven't contacted anybody yet who hasn't thought it was a good idea," he said. Currently, he said, three marketing firms on the East coast are "looking strangely" at the game, which will retail at $21.95.

The brothers made up 60 of the games for a recent trade fair here and sold $3 of them at an introductory $14.95. The other eight they gave away. They figured then they had something.

Now, they can make 1,000 a day at their plant, and say that the game will be in local stores within 30 days. For now, they are selling out of Paul's house.

KEEL-EATER
A British housewife, Mrs. Gillian Hemmings, 26, recently became the first woman world silver-eating champion when she ate half a pound of young eels in 53 seconds at Frampton-on-Severn, Gloucester.

The Kellys didn't exactly do it alone. "We get ideas from a lot of people, and using those ideas, we came up with this," Paul Kelly said as he gestured toward the original Loop-O-Tennis setup standing in his front yard.

The game itself consists of two four-foot steel stanchions on either side of an eight-foot station. The shorter poles each have a metal loop on their leeward side.

A rubber ball on the end of a nylon cord hangs from the taller pole in the middle, like a smaller tetherball.

The object is to hit the ball through the loop with a Ping-Pong paddle so that the ball catches or loops around the metal stanchion. Whoever hits the ball gets a point, with 15 points comprising a game and three games a set.

It is harder than it looks, and the Kelly brothers demonstrated that although they invented the game, they would have trouble beating the kids who play in the yard. About Doubleday was no Ty Cobb, either.

The game as originally conceived is not the model they intend to market. After the first model they began to see deficiencies and make improvements.

For one, they will include a badminton net in the package, which will give the buyer two games in one. To play badminton, you'll only have to remove the middle pole and hook the net to the shorter posts. They plan to provide a circle, too.

The game in their yard is five pieces, but the final version will be all one piece across the bottom. The poles, square instead of round, will simply be inserted. Legs on the base will also be eliminated.

The Kellys envision great things for Loop-O-Tennis.

They intend to put the entire game in a round box seven inches high and four feet in diameter, so it can fit in the trunk of a car. They hope Loop-O-Tennis will go along on family picnics and outings.

"We had a lot of fun building the prototype. So did the kids in the neighborhood," John said.

Students spend creative summer

While summer is considered a time for swimming, tree climbing and playing by many children, others are spending their time this summer creatively, learning to play the violin and to read music in the Granite City School District Summer Orchestra Program. Each morning from 8 to 9, the Granite City High School-South orchestra room hosts fourth-grade violinists attempting to master "Mississippi River," "Run Pony" and other variations while learning to balance a violin and bow. From 9 a. m. to noon each day classes are taught in reading preparation, advance ensemble and sight reading, attended by advanced Suzuki students and members of the junior and senior high school orchestra program. The advance students also study at least one string instrument in addition to their major instruments.

Moonspinners hold achievement night

The Moonspinners 4-H Club held its annual local achievement night at St. Elizabeth School Cafeteria.

Mrs. Elizabeth Schmidt, club leader, welcomed about 20 guests.

Introductions were as follows: Mrs. Ruth Malotki, foods project leader; Mrs. Josephine Uram, sewing project leader; Mrs. Catherine Ponce, activity leader; Mrs. Deanna Ketcher, crochet project leader; junior leaders Kathleen De Runtz, knitting; Mariann Yevin, foods; and Ann Uram, sewing; and officers for the 1972-1973 year, president Anita Turner, vice-president Lori Malotki, secretary Maria Schmidt, Treasurer Rosalie Ponce and recreation chairman Karen Osburn.

All joined in the Pledge of Allegiance, and the 4-H members gave the 4-H Pledge. The motto for 4-H was given by the leader: "To make the best better." Congratulations were extended to county food demonstration contestants.

Miss Melissa Overath, "peanut butter cookies"; B. red ribbon, beginning; Anita Turner, southern dinner; A. blue ribbon, and state fair demonstrator.

Demonstrations for the evening were given by Melissa Overath, beginning foods, demonstrated "Measure to be Sure"; Anita Turner, four years food, demonstrated "Southern Dinner."

All girls in the club participated in the style show for the evening. Commentators for the show were Mariann Yevin, who was chosen at "Share the Fun" earlier in the year to be the master of ceremonies at the state fair in August; and Kathleen De Runtz.

Sewing, knitting, arts and craft projects, crocheting, baby sitting, and do your own thing projects were presented, conducted by Mrs. Uram.

Mrs. Schmidt and Mrs. Ketcher presented awards to club members for the work they have done in 4-H.

One-year members received circular chevrons with 4-H emblem. They are Debra Burnett, Sandy Hupk, Melissa Overath, Kristy Krokovich and Yvonne Zotti. Two-year members received small notebands with 4-H pledge; Maryann Colbert, Sherry Ketcher, Deborah Schmoeke and Rita De Runtz.

Three-year members received bronze pins with 4-H emblem; Donna Ketcher, Lori Malotki, Karen Osburn, Rosalie Ponce and Linda St. Ivany. Four-year members received address books with 4-H emblem; Crystal Andrews, Cheryl Bellows, Mary Ann Bequette, Kathleen DeRuntz, Jane Friederich, Rhonda Ketcher, Betty Komednik, Maria Schmidt, Anita Turner and Ann Uram.

Eight-year member, Mariann Yevin received a polished bronze bookmark with a raised 4-H emblem on the handle and on a card with a verse. Kathleen DeRuntz, Ann Uram and Mariann Yevin received junior leader chevrons.

The refreshment table was decorated by Mrs. Ponce and Mrs. Malotki. It was adorned with a white cloth, a large braided snifter filled with garden flowers, green tapered candles in silver holders on each side, and silver trays with assorted cookies. Napkins were folded with green and white border and a green 4-H emblem. Serving as hostesses for the cookies were Karen Osburn and Cheryl Holmbeck. The punch was served by Anita Turner and Ann Uram.

Economics at SIUC changed

The department of economics in the School of Business is slated to become a department in the College of Liberal Arts at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale Sept. 1.

The SIU Board of Trustees approved the request at its July meeting. The economics faculty had requested the transfer of administrative responsibility, which had the approval of the heads of the school and college involved.

The request of the economics faculty concluded months of intra-departmental deliberations which resulted in overwhelming faculty support for the proposal.

Robert G. Lyster, chairman of the economics department, said the move was desirable because of the proximity of economics to other social science programs. All economics faculty members except one, who elected to remain in the School of Business, will transfer with the department, Lyster said.

Scholarships for blind set at Lewis & Clark

Through a $4,000 grant from the Alton Foundation, Lewis and Clark Community College will implement a blind student scholarship program.

Mrs. Wanda McBride of Edwardsville has been appointed program director to administer the grant. She will work with agencies through the Lewis and Clark College District to contact people who qualify for assistance in the program.

Mrs. McBride plans to arrange group classes in braille, crafts, typing and other areas of interest to blind students and to offer individual tutoring, mobility and orientation training.

A resources library will be established on the LCCC campus to meet the educational needs of the blind. Special equipment will be available to assist students with their classes and studies. The equipment will include braille writers, teletouch machines and tape recordings of basic texts and supplementary readings to accompany classes.

The use of talking books will also be implemented. Graphic scale model maps and auditory recorded maps of the campus will be created, emphasizing the physical relationships of building entrances and exits and location of walkways to enable the blind student to travel and function in the area.

SIU trustees study monorail system

The executive committee of Southern Illinois University's Board of Trustees will decide a demonstration monorail transit system.

The move was approved at the July meeting after T. Richard Mager, vice-president for development and services, said the application should be filed in the next two weeks.

Trustee Victor Rouse of Evanson said he had gathered monorail system studies from 10 other U.S. campuses which he wanted to discuss with Mager before any grant proposal is sent to the U.S. Department of Transportation. Board members wanted assurance that SIUC could turn down the grant if further studies indicate the system isn't desirable.

A Chicago Heights firm, Personalized Rapid Transit Systems Inc., has proposed designing a prototype system which would cost between $5 and $8 million dollars. The entire project would be funded by the federal agency as a demonstration project. If approved, the grant also would cover the firm's $25,000 planning fee.

According to Mager, an initial phase (estimated at $5 million) would provide a one-and-one-half mile campus loop system originating at the SIU Arena and connecting with SIUC dormitories east of the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad tracks and Rt. 51.

A second phase would install a half-mile connecting link to downtown Carbondale and another one to Evergreen Terrace, an SIUC family housing project.

Mager said a campus-wide parking and traffic study being done under a $12,000 contract by Carl Walker and Associates of Elgin will be completed in August or September and will include monorail planning in its considerations. It is expected to conclude that the feasibility of a central-campus parking garage would be enhanced by the transit system.

Mager recommended that no formal feasibility study be undertaken on the monorail itself. He said such a study could take six months and cost as much as $50,000.

Mager said the grant, if approved by the USDY and Congress, "could come in several chunks." The first could pay for an eight-of-a-mile stretch of track, complete with one underground car, to show how the system would look. Mager said it might be put up near the Arena.

PRT has proposed a "model" system for SIUC which would consist of linear-induction motor powered cars suspended from rails hung on paired guideways 12-14 feet above ground. The car would move on a friction-free cushion of air. The system would be computer-operated and would run for 24 hours a day.

Budget $20,000 for SIUE services

Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville has been authorized to spend up to $20,000 during the current fiscal year for professional services by licensed architects and engineers not regularly employed by the university.

The SIU Board of Trustees authorized the expenditure to provide specialized services not available to the university on a daily basis through its existing staff.

B. D. Hudgens, SIUE vice-president for business affairs, said the Office of Architectural and Engineering Services has been phased out because of declining need for such a fully-staffed service. He cited established enrollment patterns and the necessity to reallocate fiscal resources for other areas of a higher priority.

Budgets for the Office of Architectural and Engineering Services at SIUE had been cut from $405,549 in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970, to $128,500 in the fiscal year which ended last June. The staff has been reduced substantially.

Remaining functions of the office have been shifted to the Plant Engineering Division of Plant Operations.

Hudgens said specialized architectural and engineering services will be required for various repair, renovation and planning projects during the fiscal year, and that the service can be provided through outside contracts at a saving to the university.

Trustees approved the proposal provided fees paid do not exceed those in the fee schedule of the Southern Illinois Chapter of the American Institute of Architects. Purchase orders for such services will be required monthly by the trustees.

SIUC, hospital reach emergency service pact

Doctors Memorial Hospital in Carbondale will provide after-hours emergency medical service for Southern Illinois University at Carbondale students under an agreement approved by the SIU board at its July session.

SIUC will pay the Shawnee Health System, a local health service plan corporation, $88,000 a year to handle student emergency cases through the hospital.

Charges will be covered by fees already being paid by students, who now receive emergency care at the campus Health Service. Services will include x-rays and laboratory work, screening, outpatient emergency care, dressings, splints, casts, crutches and emergency room medication.

The move integrates the Health Service emergency operation with that of Doctors' Hospital. The campus unit will continue to provide emergency service during its regular hours—from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays and 8 a.m. to noon on Saturdays. Under the agreement, the hospital will take over after-hours and Sunday and holiday emergencies.

The agreement, already accepted by the hospital and the cooperating Carbondale Emergency Medical Service Corp., is predicated on an expected 3,700 student emergency visits a year. The one-year arrangement can be adjusted to subsequent renewals to reflect anticipated use and costs.

George Macle, dean of students, said integration will make more "efficient use of physician resources."

It is the second town-gown medical service linkup approved in the past month. Earlier, SIUC agreed to extend emergency ambulance service from the campus to the entire city.

$1.1 million approved for SIUE

A total of $1.1 million in new state-appropriated resources is being requested by Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville for the fiscal year beginning next July 1 to support four proposed new programs and expand eight existing programs.

The request was approved Friday by the SIU Board and will be forwarded to the Illinois

Board of Higher Education. The SIUE had requested information on new and improved program requests.

New programs proposed would cost $203,500. The programs and the dollar amounts requested are: Special program for black engineering students, $25,000; cooperative doctoral programs, $125,000; health related occupations, $28,000; and creation of a Social Problems Research Institute, $25,500.

Additional funds amounting to $887,500 are being requested to strengthen existing programs. These programs and the amounts requested are: Audio Visual Services, $165,100; Data Processing and Computing Center, $91,850; the master of science degree in city and regional planning, $25,500; School of Dental Medicine, $200,000; the bachelor of arts degree in human services, $90,000; the bachelor of science degree in nursing, $60,000; the bachelor of science degree in sanitation technology, $25,000; and the Supplemental Instructional Program, $60,000.

Plan parking lot at SIUC

A 500 to 600-car parking lot on the present site of a campus trailer court is included in a $287,000 parking improvement package slated for Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

The new lot, estimated cost $287,000, will be built off S. Wall Street where the university now rents trailer space to student families. There are 53 spaces in the court, about 30 of which are now occupied, according to Samuel Rinnella, director of university housing.

Rinnella said the trailer court will be vacated by Aug. 31 and said the main reason for parking lot conversion will be to "increase the marketability of the campus."

About 3,000 undergraduates live in the residence complexes. Most of them park in large overnight lots (along nearby Grand Avenue) which are scheduled to be taken out when a new $8,000,000 Co-Recreation Building and playfields project gets underway.

T. Richard Mager, vice-president for development and services, said the new black-topped and lighted lot will be a low-permit ($15 per year) installation to "provide much-needed, inexpensive parking particularly for east campus residents."

The project and other campus wide lot improvements will be paid for from SIUC's traffic and parking revenue fund, built up from parking permit sales.

Six other central-campus lots will be rearranged, curbed and guttered, surfaced, and lighted permanently under the construction plan.

The lots are located at Lawson Hall west of the Agriculture Building south of Anthony Hall, at Small Group Housing, the Communications Building, and between Grand Avenue and the Baptist Student Center.

Another existing lot on the east campus between Grand Avenue and Pearl Street will be expanded to 110 cars and also improved with curbs, gutters, paving, lighting and exit drives and walks.

Similar improvements are scheduled for a top permit ($45 per year) lot north of the Communications Building at Grand Avenue, and a completely new lot to be built west of that between Forest and Elizabeth streets.

The complete package, approved by the SIU board at its July meeting, includes employment of John H. Crawford of Carverville as engineering planner and construction supervisor at a fee not to exceed $57,500. Also in the budget is $22,000 for oil and chipping four other lots.

Concert cancelled

The Christian Music Concert planned July 27, featuring Chave Valdes, gospel television and recording artist, at the Granite City High School gymnasium, has been cancelled, according to Valdes' secretary, Miss Janice Hobbs.

Tentative plans have been made to re-schedule the concert in October, Miss Hobbs said. Any young person with a vocal instrumental talent, or church youth groups may participate in the fall program by sending their names, addresses and type of talent they may present to Miss Hobbs at 1415 Kamona Lane, St. Charles, Mo.

Retreat sounded by brass bands

New Zealand's happy tradition of serenading cruise ships as they dock in Auckland has been discontinued because of the abuse and maltreatment suffered by brass bands at the hands of ships' passengers.

The bands, manned by volunteers, have been cursed, spit on and hit by empty beer cans and air rifle pellets so ships will now be serenaded by recorded music.

Inspector Harry Thomlinson of Scotland Yard, explaining an English Scout emblem. Keith and Kevin Hewlett and Madison Police Officers Donald and Charles Bridick, both members of the Post 10-4 committee.

LOCAL POLICE EXPLORER PRESIDENTS were made honorary members of the Venture Scouts, the British equivalent of Explorers, at an Explorer meeting at the Madison Police station. initiated when the force "became highly mechanized and the police began losing contact with the people."

"The foot patrolman is on his own ground and it is to him that people, including the school children will come." The neighborhood officer is the person who knows everybody and who other police personnel contact for information concerning the entire area, the inspector said.

There is roughly one policeman to every 600 people, Inspector Thomlinson said.

The visiting officer presently is administrator of three police schools within Scotland Yard—telecommunications, home defense and firearms training.

Only a small percentage of recruits fail to make the grade in the force after acceptance, he noted, adding that an individual officer is in probationary training for two years and is selected only after aptitude, physical and educational testing and personal interviews with a police review board.

A lengthy question and answer period followed the inspector's talk.

Scotland Yard inspector made honorary Explorer

By VALERIE EKVENDEN
Press-Record Staff Writer
Questions ranging from drug abuse to pay scales to firearm laws in Britain greeted Chief Inspector Harry Thomlinson of Scotland Yard when he addressed about 50 Explorers and several area policemen at the Madison City Hall.

The top-ranked officer currently is instructing a six-week course in "Problems in Criminal Justice" at Belleville Area College. Students in the lecture series include local police department personnel.

Chief Inspector Thomlinson presented a graphic picture of the training methods, organizational structure and general policies of the British Police Force to the young men, who are members of Explorer Post 10-4 of Madison and Explorer Post 10-33 of Granite City.

Both senior scouting units are law enforcement specialty groups and are sponsored by the police departments in their respective cities.

The personable Englishman from the Lake District in North England has followed his profession as a law enforcement officer in the huge metropolitan region of Greater London since leaving the Royal Navy in 1946.

During his visit here, however, he gave adequate proof that even a busy Scotland Yard chief inspector has time and interest in youth-oriented programs when he made a surprise presentation of badges from his own Venture Scout unit, equivalent to Explorer Post in the United States, to Bill Weidner, president of Post 10-4, and Steve Fischer, president of Post 10-33, after Weidner presented the inspector with the 10-4 shoulder patch and made him an honorary member of the Madison Post.

The guest speaker also auctioned off similar patches brought from the British Isles and donated the proceeds to the treasuries of the two Explorer units.

Commenting that his activities in the scouting movement "are an important part of my life," the chief inspector told the Explorers, "Scouting is not a game and if people say it is, just forget it. It is a training ground for manhood."

"There is one thing you will find out that irrespective of the uniform you wear, people will look to you for leadership."

He described the London Metropolitan Police Force as a combination of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and Secret Service, which also includes the CID (Criminal Investigation Department) and MIS (Military Intelligence) in its Special Branch.

Its duties include guarding members of the Royal Family and visiting heads of state. Similar tasks are assigned in the U. S. to the Secret Service. The total force is independent of government control, but is very accountable for its actions at all times, he stressed.

Salaries for all British policemen are negotiated on a nation-wide level by the Federation Police Council of Great Britain, and operating expenses are paid on a 50-50 basis from local tax funds and the central government.

Points brought out by the chief inspector, included: British policemen are not permitted to shoot at a fleeing felon; only three shotguns exist in the armory of the 21,000-member metropolitan police force; guns are issued only under critical conditions and then to men trained especially to use firearms—about 3,000 in the total force. No superior officer gives an order to shoot to subordinate personnel under any circumstance—"the man is trained and it is up to him to know whether or not he should use the weapon," the inspector said.

Five people have been shot in the last five months in the Greater London area, which encompasses about nine million population; truncheons (nightsticks) are carried and considered satisfactory; only CS gas so used in the three police fields. Dogs are in wide use as drug "sniffers" and others are trained to locate bombs, the inspector said.

He described a unique "home beat" program that is proving successful, in which the patrolman or "bobby" lives and works in a specific area, setting his own work hours during a 24-hour period when he judged his services were most needed according to his own neighborhood.

The home beat area also is covered by a radio-equipped "Panda" car, a vehicle about the size of a Volkswagen and operated by a single constable.

The inspector explained that the home beat program was initiated when the force "became highly mechanized and the police began losing contact with the people."

"The foot patrolman is on his own ground and it is to him that people, including the school children will come." The neighborhood officer is the person who knows everybody and who other police personnel contact for information concerning the entire area, the inspector said.

There is roughly one policeman to every 600 people, Inspector Thomlinson said.

The visiting officer presently is administrator of three police schools within Scotland Yard—telecommunications, home defense and firearms training.

Only a small percentage of recruits fail to make the grade in the force after acceptance, he noted, adding that an individual officer is in probationary training for two years and is selected only after aptitude, physical and educational testing and personal interviews with a police review board.

A lengthy question and answer period followed the inspector's talk.

Name champions in Park District's annual summer playground program

The "All-City Championship Tournaments" were held at the Wilson Park Ice Rink in the Granite City Park District's summer recreation program under the leadership of Mrs. Helen Bjorkman, program director.

Second through sixth grade pupils, champions of their own individual playground centers, took part in such activities as hopscotch, four squares, checkers, horseshoes, frisbee and hula hoop events with the first, second and third place winners receiving ribbons or medals.

Playground centers participating in the tournaments were Logan, Marshall, Parkview, Nantoni, Niedringhaus, Webster, McKinley, Wilson and Washington schools and the Lincoln Place Community Center.

Championship winners were: Hopscotch—Barb Tackett (Wilson) first; Pam Dudak (Parkview) second; Karen Wickham (Marshall) third. Horseshoes—Don Jones (Logan) first; Vince Paschke (Parkview) second; Tina Sedabres (Marshall) third. Checkers—Veda Bolin

(McKinley) first; Wendell Tackett (Wilson) second; Todd McFarland (Parkview) third. Four Squares—Tom Duckworth (Parkview) first; Annette York (Webster) second; Mary Paterson (Nantoni) third. Hula Hoop—Linda Knobeloch (Webster) first; Cheryl Basan (McKinley) second; Pat Black (Marshall) third. Frisbee—Kenny Wallace (Marshall) first; Ray Martinez (Community Center) second; Chris McGovern (Parkview) third.

THREE SETS OF TWINS have been attending summer school at Emerson School. In first row are twin rabbits, Goldie and Precious, six weeks old; second row, Kim and Tim Miller, 7, children of Dr. and Mrs. Earl Miller, 3404 Princeton Drive; third row, Donald and Ronald Miller, 8, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Miller, 2150 Delmar Ave., with their teacher, Mrs. Ray L. Personnel training for Airman Wheatley Airman Robert E. Wheatley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl N. Wheatley, 2315 Illinois Ave., has been assigned to Keesler Air Force Base Miss., after completing Air Force basic training.

During his six weeks at the Air Training Command's Lackland AFB, Tex., he studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

The airman has been assigned to the Technical Training Center at Keesler for specialized training as a personnel specialist.

Airman Wheatley is a 1968 graduate of Granite City High School. His wife is the former Janet L. Fritchell.

RELUCTANT MATADOR Diego Bardon, 24-year-old matador, recently refused to kill the bull in his sensational bullfighting debut as a planned protest against the "barbaric sport," and was promptly thrown into a Madrid jail.

Two youths return from hockey school

Tim Weaver and Bill Scattura, teammates of the Eastman hockey team of Granite City, returned Sunday from the Dave Keon and Billy Harris Hockey School of St. Catherine's Hockey School in Ontario, Canada.

This school is for defensemen only. Instructors were Jim McKinney of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, Steve Cuddy of the Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association and Dave Draper, former coach of Loyola University of Montreal, Canada.

St. Stanislaus members in pageant

A pageant of Polish Youth was staged in Chicago, under the auspices of the Woman's Department of the Polish Roman Catholic Union of America; Stanislaus Lodge, Madison, is a member branch.

The St. Stanislaus Lodge dancers were among the seven hundred Polish youngsters, attending from many states to perform at Orchestra Hall.

The Madison dance group performed to the "Sandra Polka."

Among the finalists in the competition for king and queen of the Polish Roman Catholic Union Centennial Year, and representing Circuit No. 21 of the St. Louis District, were Nancy Marie Forsy of Granite City and Alyce Ruesing of Madison.

A PRCA Centennial banquet and ball is planned for October at the Polish Hall in Madison at which the local prince and princess will reign over the activities.

Taking part in the pageant at Chicago were: Rita, Susan and Mark Ruesing; Larry Ruesing, Donna and Philip Gordon, Rita Gula, Judy Bank, Mary Helen Blasi, Joey, John and Elizabeth Mulnik, Joan and Lynne Krystopa, Angela Grupas, Debbie and Denise McKee, Joan and Lynne Krystopa, Charles Wasylik and Sandy Stenzler. Dance teacher was Connie Grupas and dance director was Hattie Mulnik.

PRINCE AND PRINCESS of the St. Stanislaus Lodge of Madison who competed for the title of King and Queen of the Polish Roman Catholic Union of America Centennial at the Polish Youth Festival held in Chicago. They are Alyce Ruesing of Madison and Miss Nancy Forsy of Granite City who also participated with other members of the lodge in the festival.

Chicago were: Sigmund and son Roger, Mrs. Elsie Gordon and daughter Cathy, Mrs. Eve Majkut, Mrs. Clara Bank, Mrs. Pat McKee, Gerri Mendes and John Kurosz.

Use pressure canner for vegetables

By CATHERINE HAUCK
Home Economics Adviser

Use the pressure canner to process all common vegetables—except tomatoes and pickled vegetables. A pressure canner is the only kitchen utensil that can supply a high, enough temperature in a reasonable length of time to kill the spores of bacteria that cause botulism, flat-sour and other types of spoilage.

When using a pressure canner, follow the manufacturer's directions. But if you've lost the instructions, follow these general directions for any steam-pressure canner:

Be sure the canner is clean and in perfect working order before you begin processing.

Place two or three inches of water and a rack in the bottom of the canner.

Set the filled glass jars on the rack in the canner. There should be enough space between jars so that steam can flow around them.

If you put in two layers of jars, use a rack between layers and stagger the top layer.

Fasten the canner cover securely so that steam escapes only at the petcock or weighted-gauge opening.

Place the canner over heat and allow steam to escape from the vent for 10 minutes to force all air out of the canner. Then close the petcock or put on the weighted gauge.

Let the pressure rise to 10 pounds—24 degrees F.—and begin counting processing time immediately.

Keep the pressure constant during processing by regulating the heat under the canner. Remove the canner from the heat as soon as processing time is finished. Let the canner stand until the pressure is zero. Then wait a minute or two before opening the petcock or taking off the weighted gauge. As you remove the cover, tilt the far side up so that the steam escapes away from you.

Remove the jars and place them top side up on a rack to cool.

Legendre-Sabo wedding

Rosemont Baptist Church at Washington Park was the scene of the wedding of Miss Diane Lynn Sabo and Joseph Allen Legendre, 1628 N. 4th St., East St. Louis, on her father, the Rev. Robert Sabo, officiated at the 7:30 evening ceremony on July 14.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul William Sabo, 1628 N. 4th St., East St. Louis, formerly of Granite City. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Legendre, 408 S. Chestnut St., East St. Louis.

"Because" and the Lord's Prayer were sung by Mr. Sabo, the bride's father, accompanied by the organist, Calvin Lecuyer.

Miss Sabo was presented and given in marriage by her father. She chose a bridal gown fashioned with a lace bodice, full sheer long sleeves that gathered at the wrists with a wide scalloped lace ruffle.

The sheer yoke was designed with a stand-up lace collar and the full-length skirt was softly gathered at the natural waistline.

Her bouffant veil of bridal illusion was held in place with a band of scalloped lace and pearls and she carried a cascade of carnation and roses.

Miss Marie Cueto, Troy, served as maid of honor with William White, East St. Louis, as best man.

Mrs. Legendre, the former Miss Sabo, is a graduate of East St. Louis High School and attended Belleville Area College. She now is employed as a secretary in the guidance department of East St. Louis Board of Education.

Her husband is a graduate of Collinsville High School and is attending Belleville Area College, working toward an associate degree in law. He is now a police cadet in the East St. Louis Police Department.

Mr. and Mrs. Legendre welcomed their guests at a reception held at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Lebanon Road, immediately after the ceremony.

Return from convention

Members of the Veterans of World War I, Baroque 34, and Auxiliary attended the 19th Department of Illinois Convention in Peoria, returning home during the weekend.

Local members who were elected to office were William Breidenbach who will serve as Department Quartermaster.

Mrs. Breidenbach was appointed color bearer. Others who attended the convention from the local organization were Mrs. Vera Schilling, Mrs. Irene Hendricks and Mrs. Kathryn Fullers.

National representative for the men was Harold Sessions of Michigan, the national hospital chairman, Ruth Haneman of California, the national chaplain, Mrs. Sessions and Donna Carlberg of Nebraska, a past national president, were auxiliary representatives.

MRS. PERRY HOSTESS

TO CLUB IN HOME

Mrs. Marie Perry was hostess to the Monday Afternoon Club in her home, 3201 Hedge Ave. Luncheon was served prior to playing games.

Mrs. Perry, Mrs. Leona Pareante and Mrs. Cele Kennedy were the prize winners. Others participating were Mrs. Margaret Richardson, Mrs. Mildred Schmidt, Mrs. Betty Heller, Mrs. Myrtle Bruns, Mrs. Verna Moehle and a guest, Mrs. Grace Hemmrich.

Mrs. Richardson will entertain in her home, 2245 Pontoon Road, in two weeks.

Martin-Hollis nuptials at 1st Assembly of God

Miss Rhonda Hollis, daughter of Mrs. Theodore Kotoff, 2944 Victory Drive, and Charles David Hollis, 4000th Drive, became the bride of Patrick Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Martin, 2510 Ivy Lane, on June 23.

Altar bouquets of blue and white daisies and white mums and greenery adorned the altar of the First Assembly of God Church, 34th street and Grand avenue, as the Rev. Allen Groff officiated at the double-ring ceremony candlelight service at 7 o'clock in the evening.

The bride selected a white Chantilly lace bouffant silhouette gown accented with tiny white satin ribbon and seed pearls at the neckline, centered with a small bow and seed pearls. The renaissance sleeves fashioned with a short puff banded with a satin ribbon and bow around the arm terminated into a long fitted sleeve edged with ruffle at the wrists enhanced with iridescent sequins.

Her bouffant skirt of ruffled lace tiers edged with tiny rows of lace and iridescent sequins was created with a front panel of lace and the very full skirt extended into a full cathedral train.

She wore a shoulder-length veil of bridal illusion secured with a band of matching lace and sequins and carried a cascade of pink daisies and white roses.

Miss Donna Hollis, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Miss Rhonda Duffey and Miss Donna Piper served as bridesmaids.

The honor attendant chose a petal pink gown designed in a Victorian style with high neckline trimmed with lace ruffles that was repeated on the Empire bodice and formed the cuffs of the long sleeves. Their long skirts were designed in an A-line fashion.

Long blue crepe gowns in identical design were worn by the bridesmaids and the little flower girl, Heather Freedy, was gown in a frock similar to the bridesmaid. She carried a white basket of red rose petals and the attendants held white wicker parasols filled with pink and blue daisies and baby breath.

Danny Paul attended the groom as best man. Larry Martin, brother of the groom, and Dale Martin, a cousin of the groom, were groomsmen.

Keith and Kevin Hollis, the bride's cousins, and Gary Johnson acted as the groom's best men. Miss Donna Patterson presided at the guest book at a reception given immediately following the ceremony at the church fellowship hall.

A rehearsal dinner was served to the wedding party and family at the Knottman Center. The newly married couple will reside at 2517 Benton St.

RAILROAD HANDS --- There's always a lot of volunteer help around the railroad museum at Monticello.

REMEMBERING --- This golden age's thoughts may be private, but five'll get you 10 those same thoughts are nearly universal.

OL' NO. 1 --- She burns soft coal, belches smoke as black as burning tires and blasts her warnings through a whistle that sounds exactly like the one you last remember hearing.

Railroad brings memories

MONTICELLO --- It sneaks up on you and you begin to realize that you enjoy it before your second realization tells you what it is you're enjoying. It's there and in the air and it smells a little like rotten eggs and tickles your nose just a little before catching in the back of your throat.

You shouldn't like that smell, you tell yourself, but — like burning autumn leaves — it's something you haven't smelled for so long, it brings back memories far bolder than the distaste you have for the smell.

It's coal that you smell. Soft, bituminous coal with so much sulfur in it the Environmental Protection Agency would rather have us not use it anymore. And you realize it's the sulfur that smells like rotten eggs and catches in the back of the throat and, if you are around it long enough, it will make your eyes water, too.

You smell the coal because you're riding in something you've never had a chance to ride in before even though you've wanted to for as long as you can remember.

It's the caboose — or "hack," or "crummy," or "way car," as real railroaders call them — on the Monticello and Sangamon Valley Railway Co., and from up there in the cupola you can see a long way. For your small son or daughter, sitting on your lap, it seems as if the whole world is spread out before him and he shrieks with delight because it's one of his storybook tales come true. (They don't very often, you know.) You shriek with delight, too, inside yourself, because at this moment you're his age, real companions at last.

And as you hang your head out the window just as you've seen railroad men do — with your son clammering to follow your example — that smoke drifts deliciously across your nose and you don't mind it a bit if a little soot settles on you. In fact, you'd like to get a little soot and grime on you, a souvenir of a day's experience that you'll not likely relive for a long time.

Up ahead, in front of the caboose, is a former Rock Island consolidator car, and maybe ahead of that is a tank car, or flatcar, or both or a combination of other cars, but ahead of that is, well, you already know it's a steam engine.

That steam engine is the first thing that caught your eye. You were looking for "Ol' Number 1" on the M&STV. No. 1 because you could see the southeast of the intersection — as you drove by the three-way intersection of Interstate 74 and Ill. Rt. 42, and Ill. Rt. 185, (actually, access to the railway property is via a frontage road exiting on Rt. 185 southeast of the intersection.) You drove back there because you saw No. 1 belching its smoke and pulling a string of cars while you were driving along the Interstate. Or because you knew the railroad museum was back there in a triangular piece of land and had a little more than three miles of operable track adjacent to the Illinois Central and no trailing track. Or maybe you merely saw the smoke and were curious.

Anyway, you were looking for the cause of that smoke. And there it was, kitten-sized as far as railroad steam engines go. THE WORLD OF MUSIC

George Harrison returns in style

By JUDY HUGG
Copley News Service

Often, when the bottom falls out and a rock group decides to split, its members are like fish out of water.

They try to go solo but just don't have the stuff or they join another band only to find that they are slipping away from the type of music they want to play.

However, this is not the case for George Harrison, former Beatle.

We haven't heard from George in quite some time, but he seems to have done some heavy thinking and lots of hard work since his last LP of several years ago. For his new album, "Living in the Material World," on Apple Records, is just fantastic.

The platter is a collection of ballads and rock cuts all written, produced and performed by Harrison. In a sincere, but not too heavy-handed way, he gives his band as his backup musicians, Nicky Hopkins and Gary Wright, on keyboards; Klaus Voormann on bass; Jim Keltner and former Beatle Ringo Starr on drums; Jim Horn, flute; Zakie Hussain, tuba; and John Barman on strings.

There's no doubt that the album will soon be riding on the top of the charts since all 11 cuts will awaken anyone who was ever a fan of the Beatles. Try "One After 909," "Give Me Love," "Don't Let Me Wait Too Long," "Try Some, Buy Some," and "The Image." Truly a collector's item.

It's an unlikely combination.

HEALTH'S-A-POPPIN' Eyes reflect state of health

By MARION WELLS
Copley News Service

When was the last time someone told you, "You're tired, I can see it in your eyes?"

There's a valid reason for such an observation. Your eyes often reflect the state of your health.

Ophthalmologists recognize that eye examinations can alert your physician to existing health problems and may even enable him to "see ahead" and predict conditions which will not affect you for months or maybe years.

These clues can be helpful in dealing with such ailments as high blood pressure, anemia, diabetes, metabolic disorders and vitamin deficiencies.

While about 8,000 people reportedly go blind in this country every year, statistics show that half this blindness is preventable. Here are some insights which can be "sight savers."

Because your brain and your eyes work so closely together, any bodily imbalance can have an effect on your eyes. A recent government report states: "The eye is particularly sensitive to nutritional inadequacy.... Good nutrition and intact vision are inextricably linked together tion: modernist composer Pierre Boulez conducting music by that old Romantic Hector Berlioz. You wouldn't think they'd have a thing in common. But Boulez plays all his weird noises and other far-out sounds aside to bring out the dramatic richness of Berlioz's "Boulez Conducts Berlioz." Featured are the composer's "Symphonie Fantastique," "The Royal Hunt and Storm," two selections from "Brecht and Benedict," and "Romantic Carnival." Berlioz is true to his belief.

Frank Sinatra first hit it big in the early 1940s when he was singing with Tommy Dorsey. The teeny-boppers started jumping and Sinatra's name went up in lights. Then they stopped and his career went into decline — only to come back to more spectacular heights when he hit his last peak in the '50s and '60s. RCA-Columbia is out with a two-record album that spotlights some of the Dorsey-Sinatra songs recorded in those pre-war years. This is a shadow, only a hint, of the Sinatra voice that was to develop later. The phrasing is good, but not great the way it was later. One thing, though, never changed with Sinatra: the perfect combination of each word in a vocal. Highlight of the LP is Dorsey's "Unforgettable," an arrangement of "Marie," with Sinatra on vocal.

He had such reverence for the great symphonies of his predecessor, Beethoven, that it was not until he was 43 years old that Johannes Brahms finally completed what his friends had been urging him to do: write a symphony. It was the C Minor Symphony, a gorgeous burst of sound with all the rich Brahmsian textures. No apologies to Beethoven were needed. Columbia Records now has issued a three-record album containing the C Minor and the three other Brahms symphonies, beautifully interpreted by Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic. The recordings are so arranged that the listener can hear a complete symphony without changing the records (none of this irritating first part on the front and last on the back sort of thing). The sound engineering is of a quality that will please lovers of Brahms.

and is one of the vitamin deficiencies most likely to occur in American diets.

According to the government report, "Studies in Iowa lead us to believe that levels of serum vitamin A (then accepted as satisfactory) may be too low." One authority states that rats require up to twenty times more vitamin A during pregnancy.

According to medical authorities, failure to properly absorb or utilize vitamin A can result in a deficiency. Certain illnesses such as sprue, liver disease and chronic nephritis can create a "secondary" deficiency.

You can usually get vitamin A from liver, whole milk, fish liver, oils, butter, NATURAL cheese, green leafy vegetables and carrots.

Your eye health will also be "out of focus" if you're deficient in thiamine, riboflavin, niacin or vitamin B12. Although deficiencies of these B complex vitamins are more often associated with deteriorating vision due to optic nerve degeneration, sometimes problems attributed to vitamin A deficiency respond favorably to the B complex.

You can become deficient in the B complex after cutting down on an extended period. These vitamins can be found in brewers yeast, eggs, squash, legumes, organ meats, milk, fish and fresh whole grains.

Cicadas return to Illinois

Copley News Service

JOLIET — Some people call them crickets, others say they look like grasshoppers, and still others call them by the correct name of cicada (pronounced see-say-day).

Scientifically, they are known as magicicada septendecim. And there really is something magic-like about the way they emerge every 13 or 17 years, depending on the life cycle of the particular species.

Hundreds have been seen recently near New Lenox including a batch which burrowed out of the ground between the 14th and 15th tees at Woodruff Golf Course here. John Ehrlich, a horticulture adviser for the Will County Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Illinois, says they are not harmful for the most part. Rather, they are nature's way of helping to prune many trees. The female lays eggs in branches which die off as the sap is sucked out of the shoots.

Cicadas emerge each year somewhere in this country. This year the prominence of the 17-year species is in Illinois and other northern Illinois and Wisconsin areas.

The cicadas leave the ground in large numbers and head for the nearest upright object, preferably a tree. The nymph attaches itself firmly to the object, Ehrlich explained, by splitting its skin down the middle of the back. The nymph emerges as a winged adult. At first it is soft and white but as tissues dry out it becomes darker and darker.

Soon the mating takes place. The male that makes all the racket. That is where the similarity to a cricket comes in. The mating sound is likened to that of katydids on a clear, summer moonlight night. Even for the cicadas it is a racket to engage in a little serenading to attract the females.

Usually the eggs for the new brood are laid within 10 days. The females lay eggs in rows in pockets they cut in small branches and twigs with their long, knife-like egg layer. Ehrlich said each female may make from five to 20 of these pockets, laying 24 to 28 eggs in two rows in each pocket. The eggs hatch in six or seven weeks. The newly hatched nymphs fall to the ground and burrow until they find suitable roots, usually one and a half to two feet under the top of the soil.

With their sucking mouth parts they immediately begin to suck juices from roots of plants and organic materials. And 17 years hence, in 1990, survivors from this year's batch will burrow upward until they are about an inch below the surface. Then, when the proper night comes, they will leave the ground en masse and start the cycle over again.

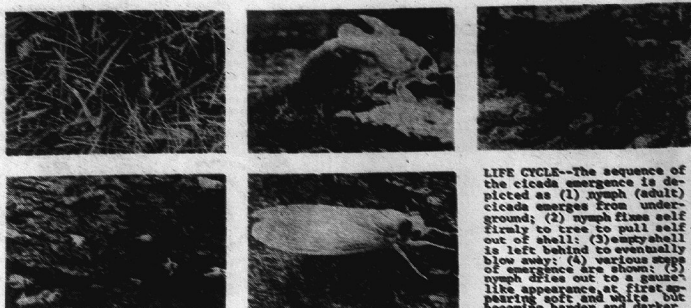

Ehrlich emphasized the adults do not eat the plant foliage but that any damage done is usually to small branches through the slit made for the egg deposits. The small branches often turn brown and die, sometimes breaking off, thus the effect of nature doing its own pruning, he added.

Small shade trees and ornamental plants can be covered with netting such as cheesecloth to prevent egg-laying damage, he said. The female prefers to lay eggs in twigs of oak, hickory, apple, peach and pear trees and grape vines.

Cartary, known also by the trade name of Sevin, can be applied as a spray to control cicadas. For spraying large areas the formula is two pounds of 50 percent wettable powder per 100 gallons of water. For fewer trees, the formula is two tablespoons per gallon of water. The spraying process should be repeated five days after the first application, but the solution should not be applied to producing apple trees within 30 days after full-bloom since this could cause fruit thinning, he said. The solution also should be avoided where Boston ivy grows.

Those shells remaining behind from the old nymphs will dry up and usually blow away. But some youngsters have gathered them to string bracelets and necklaces.

LIFE CYCLE—The sequence of the cicada emergence is depicted as (1) nymph (adult) cicada emerges from underground; (2) nymph climbs self firmly to tree to pull self out of shell; (3) nymph blows away; (4) various stages of emergence are shown: (5) nymph dries out to a gaunt, like appearance at first appearing soft and white but becoming harder and darker as tissues dry out.

Rebuilt Lincoln cabin authentic

CHARLESTON, Ill. — Save for the son he fathered, there was more disappointment than achievement in Thomas Lincoln's life. Like many of his era he turned an uninspired hand to farming while his real attention was fixed on an unsuccessful search for the better life which always stayed just out of reach, beyond the farther fences.

Abraham Lincoln was living in the White House at the time he died. Thomas Lincoln, at the end of his life, was still living in a two-room log cabin south of what is now Charleston, unable to get by on his 100-acre farm without occasional financial help from his lawyer son. The site is now Lincoln Log Cabin state park.

The very cabin itself later became a victim of uncertainty and was dismantled. Thomas Lincoln had already had a history of disappointment and only sometime success in his careers as a carpenter and farmer in Kentucky, when, in 1818, he moved with his wife and family to Indiana. Only two years later Nancy Hanks Lincoln died in one of the recurring outbreaks of "milk sickness," leaving Lincoln with an indigent farm and a motherless family.

A year later he married Sarah Bush Johnston, a widow who became a beloved and guiding figure in young Abraham's life.

By 1830 Thomas Lincoln was discouraged enough to try again somewhere to the west, and the family moved into Illinois, building their first cabin southwest of the present city of Decatur. Six feet of snow marooned the Lincolns in their cabin through a wretched winter and with spring, Thomas Lincoln decided to turn his back on the beckoning West and go back to Indiana. En route he stopped in Coles County and was persuaded to give Illinois one more chance, and settle at Buck Grove.

In 1834 Lincoln moved again, this time to a farm near Lerna. In 1837 he moved twice more, still looking for the site where the fields were more fertile and the promises would be fulfilled. The last move was to an 80-acre farm at Goose Nest Prairie.

A few years later he added 40 more acres, but things were still sparse and the next year, in 1841, Abraham Lincoln paid his father $200 for the 40 acres, leaving them in a life estate for his parents' use. Thomas Lincoln died ten years later, and Mrs. Lincoln lived on in the farm cabin until she died in 1883.

The cabin was still there in 1892 when it was sent to the Columbian Exposition in Chicago, with the promise it would be dismantled and returned to Coles County after the fair. Instead, the entire cabin disappeared.

In 1929 the state acquired the site. In order to reconstruct the cabin, extensive searching was done to locate its exact site, and old photos and affidavits from old settlers were used to furnish original details. The present furniture consists of artifacts and furniture of the Thomas Lincoln period, and includes an ash-hopper for making lye, long wedges for splitting rails, and an ox-yoke.

Other public spots of interest in the area include the Moore home, where Lincoln ate with his stepmother and her daughter before leaving for his Washington inauguration, and the Shiloh cemetery where Thomas Lincoln and Sarah Lincoln are buried. Stories say Lincoln himself, on a visit to the cemetery, used a saw and an axe to make markers of a white oak board for the head and foot of his father's grave, and whittled the initials "T.L." on them in 1841, just before leaving for Washington. These markers were later stolen by souvenir hunters and the grave was unmarked for many years. Presently, a large stone for Lincoln and his wife marks the graves, inside an ornamental fence enclosure.

Lincoln Log Cabin State Park, off Ill. 130 south of Charleston, is an 80-acre park containing a 30-acre conservation plot. There are picnic facilities and some limited camping in provided for both trailers and tents.

Salaries paid by court order

In obedience to a court injunction, Michael J. Howlett, Secretary of State, is continuing to pay salaries of 18 employees laid off in the consolidation of Drivers License stations July 1. Seventy-three employees were dismissed when Howlett closed 45 little-used stations. Many had been staffed with one examiner. The work load was transferred to the 35 stations remaining open.

"The 16 filed a suit in circuit court in Sangamon County," said Howlett. "Judge Edward W. Ryan has ruled they are entitled to the same remedies as employees certified under the Personnel Code, although they are not certified employees."

"Accordingly, the court has ruled they shall remain as state employees until given pre-layoff hearing."

"The facilities in which they work have been closed. We have no work for these men and women. We can handle our full load of work with our remaining staff and facilities at a saving to the tax payer of $1,000 month per employee."

Warn flood victims of new 'soaking'

By JOAN MURARO

Springfield — Victims of recent spring floods in Illinois are facing the threat of a new 'soaking', this time from unethical contractors and repairmen. The state Civil Defense Agency, which usually advises citizens about other types of disasters, has issued a warning to home owners in flood-affected areas, warning that unscrupulous operators have recognized the potential for a whole new bargain among the

The agency, in cooperation with the consumer protection division of the state's attorney general's office, has issued six warnings. They include getting several written estimates from different reliable and reputable contractors before signing any contract; having the proposed contract read by an attorney "to be sure that it says what you think it says," and avoiding any contract which you are asked to sign while it still has blank spaces left in it.

Home owners are also urged to obtain and keep a copy of the agreement which the contractor signed, to protect their legal rights, and to refuse if asked to sign a certificate stating the work has been completed, when in fact it has not yet been done to the home owner's satisfaction.

Home owners are reminded as well that even after the contract has been signed, it can be canceled within three days. If they decide to cancel the contract, however, they are urged to contact a lawyer right away.

The suggestions were based on well-known fraudulent practices by some operators who give an unwritten verbal "estimate", then submit a bill for much higher charges based on price which were added after the contract was signed, or who get the home owner to sign statements that the work has been satisfactorily completed when it is still unfinished, based on the contractor's verbal promise (which is not kept) to "come back next week and finish up", of who give a verbal estimate, do the job, and submit an enormously higher bill which they justify with a batch of doubletalk about hard-to-find parts and such.

Those wishing further information on these or any possibly fraudulent practices are urged to contact the consumer protection division of the attorney general's office in Springfield.

RECEIVING AWARDS from the Merit Award Committee of the American Red Cross are Russell Bieller of East Carondelet, left, and Illinois State Police Trooper Leo J. Ard, right. They were honored for their attempts to save the life of a St. Louis man after he collapsed of a heart attack on a Waterloo golf course May 16. The awards were given by Dr. Matthew Eisele, center, a member of the Merit Award Committee and a medical advisor to the committee.

SECRETARY OF STATE EXAMINER assists a motorist with a vision test at a Public Trailer Service unit which will visit the Madison County Fair next week. Eight such units will give more than three million persons an opportunity to become better informed in driver education and traffic rules.

Driver service trailer to be at county fair

One of Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett's Public Trailer Service units will visit the Madison County Fair at Highland from July 24 through July 28.

"We believe this unit will serve a very useful purpose in promoting and emphasizing traffic safety," Howlett said. Experienced personnel will accompany the unit, answering questions drivers may have on the Rules of the Road and assisting with vision tests.

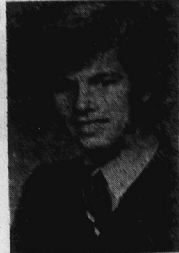

Howlett said eight mobile units have been renovated at minimum cost and will be stationed at about 100 county fairs this summer.

"In addition to the fair program, they will be assigned to special events for adults and youths as well as major shopping centers," he added.

License deadline nears

Michael J. Bonlett, secretary of state, today reminded owners of trucks and other second division vehicles licensed on a fiscal year basis that only a few days remain to purchase and display license plates for Fiscal Year 1973-1974. "The deadline for displaying plates is midnight Tuesday, July 21. Bonlett said there will be no further extensions of this deadline. He warned there is no guarantee that orders received in Springfield at this late date can be processed and the plates delivered in time to meet the deadline.
